NOTABLE PICTURE FOR HIGH SCHOOL

Reproduction of Painting in State Capitol to be Given by this Year's Graduating Class. Will be Hung in Hallway.

The Senior Class of the Gettysburg High School will present at their commencement exercises on May 28 the largest picture and one of the best which it has ever been the good fortune of the school to receive. It will be a copy of one of the Violet Oakley paintings in the Pennsylvania State Capitol.

The subject is "Penn's Vision" and the picture measures 39 x 80 inches.

This is the first of the Violet Oakley paintings dealing with the early history of Pennsylvania and it is quite probable that the classes of succeeding years will follow the example of the 1915 graduates and present the others of the series which, when completed, will form a very valuable collection and add greatly to the interior furnishings of the High School building. The picture to be given this year is too large to be hung in any one of the rooms and it will accordingly be placed in the hallway where it will be the first thing to catch the visitor's eye as he enters the building.

The picture has been purchased out of the proceeds of the Senior class play "A College Town", given several months ago by Walter's Theatre, and enjoyed by a large audience of friends of the schools and of the individual pupils.

The commencement this year promises to be among the most successful that the High School has ever had. The program has not yet been announced. To add to the prospect for its success, the services of Allen D. Plank has been secured and he will have in charge the arrangement of the stage. It will be recalled that Mr. Plank did this for the class of last year and the success with which he carried out the work is well remembered. He can be relied upon to provide some unusual and beautiful scheme again this year.

The committee for the annual banquet of the High School Alumni Association announce that it will be held this year at the Eagle Hotel on the evening of Thursday, May 27. Special efforts are being made to insure a large attendance. The graduating class will be among the banqueters.

THREE GAMES ON OPENING DATE

First Boy's Schedule in Arranged. Preparations under Way in Various Towns of the Blue Ridge League. Making Progress.

The Blue Ridge League will open its season on Thursday, May 27, when Chambersburg will play in Hagerstown; Martinsburg in Frederick, and Gettysburg at Hanover. This is the tentative arrangement announced by President Boyer. On Friday following the opening, the teams will have an off day.

In the pinh of condition, "Country" Boyer, who is also manager, will pilot the Martinsburg club this season arrived in the West Virginia town, assuring the fans there that he will put a winning aggregation on the diamond this season. Morris has a large number of men signed to report by May 10 and announced the following as being under contracts with him: catcher, Zachary, of Washington; pitchers, Bowers, of Maryland, Donovan, of Chicago; Finney Kelley and Dolly Gray, of Washington; infielders, Gill and Thornsette, of Washington; outfielders, Hagerstown Agriculture College; outfielders, Rabe and Johnson, of Washington, and Davis, of Baltimore.

With the determination to sell over two hundred and thirty more season tickets, notwithstanding that the fans have already signed for about one hundred and fifty more than last spring, committee of the Frederick Baseball Association will start out to secure the town during next week. In Martinsburg and in the Frederick club of the Blue Ridge circuit they have raised funds thus over and the directors have decided to secure more than the 250 season ticket subscribers.

The latest scheme to sell out sees the construction work on Hagerstown's baseball park well under way. The grounds will be completed and it is expected to report there this week with about two dozen of the players who have been lined up for the city.

CONTENTION SETTLED

Pickes Brothers Share Estate of Adams County Woman.

The Superior Court decision, affirming the decision of the Orphans' Court, of York, in the estate of Hannah A. Pickes, from which no appeal had been taken by Mrs. Hattie M. Anstadt, not only upholds the York County Court, but that of the auditor, who held that the estate was not by the terms of the will left absolutely to Mrs. Anstadt, but that $500 was to be held in trust for each of her two brothers, Charles and Howard.

It was stated in the testimony that the testatrix, Henrietta A. Pickes, of Hanover, was a woman of considerable ship, who died in the York hospital a few years ago, had left her entire estate to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hattie M. Anstadt, saying "she knows full well my wishes and I have confidence she will carry them out." The account of the auditor in which the testatrix had told her that her brothers were liable and the accountant "should close his books on them." The brothers' claim making was at the trial held to contention in their attempt to set the will aside.

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS

Foreign Embassy will Get Buena Vista Inn.

The long white frame building years ago used as an annex to the old Buena Vista hotel, is being repaired on an elaborate scale and made ready. It is said, for occupancy by a foreign embassy during the summer. A fresh paint has been applied to the walls, and the roof has been fixed. Of course are to be provided and four or five cases have been fenced off for the use of the residents in the annex. The plans presente a very handsome appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. McAllister and little daughter, of Harrisburg, and Miss Ritter, of Loysville, are guests at the home of Theodore McAllister, High street.

WILL NOT TAKE BLAME FOR LOAN

Emmitsburg Boys Assert that Two Thousand but no One Wants to Assume Responsibility of Debt. Election Fails to Clear Matter.

The responsibility for the debt of $1,795 of the town of Emmitsburg is one of the burning questions at that place which remains unsolved as a result of the town election held there on Monday. From reports, no one is willing to assume the responsibility for the indebtedness, but at the same time the people are paying the interest on the money.

It was about two years ago when a lot of tonerete work was done in Emmitsburg that the money was borrowed at that place. It had been decided, at the time, to repave and the money was accordingly secured. Now there are some people in Emmitsburg who take the position that the town officials were not authorized to borrow the money and the note given for the payment of the loan is the obligation of the individuals and not of the town. But the town is paying the interest each year on the debt.

Now, after two years ago when a lot of concrete work was done in Emmitsburg that the money was borrowed at that place. It had been decided, at the time, to repave and the money was accordingly secured. Now there are some people in Emmitsburg who take the position that the town officials were not authorized to borrow the money and the note given for the payment of the loan is the obligation of the individuals and not of the town. But the town is paying the interest each year on the debt.

Now, apparently no one is willing to take the responsibility for the debt. New officials are not anxious to raise the question. Some years ago a new charter was granted the town by the Legislature. This charter provides that the officials have no power to borrow money without the consent of the people, while others hold otherwise. There are others who contend that the charter which was granted was not borrowed in legal form. While the matter is held in doubt about the indebtedness, it is generally remembered about the time of election that the $1,795 is owed and that it ultimately has to be aired and find some settlement.

The Emmitsburg election was exciting enough. A burgess and a commissioner were elected. John A. W. Matthews getting the former office with 154 votes, and C. Harner getting the latter office for three years with 151 votes. The other candidates are who hold over are W. B. Morrison, treasurer, and C. M. Rider, secretary. Commissioners who were John Agnew and V. E. Rowe.

BEAUTIFYING HOME

Extensive Improvements Being Made at Blue Gables.

For the past few weeks S. L. Johns has been renovating his handsome summer home, Hanover, Mr. Johns has been engaged in repairing and repainting the house in beautiful hues and now is at work on the exterior. The house is to be painted white and the trimments had crashed and broken off will be replaced with new ornamental. Both of the house Mr. Johns is laying out an extensive sunken garden, which will be planted with flowers through it. The center of this garden will be a fountain, which will be built and other tropical plants will be resolved from the South. The outer edges of the garden will be planted with plants, shrubs and flowers. In front of the house is to be a large lawn, extending with a fountain in the center and a deep border of flowers will surround the pond.

MOTHERS' DAY

Local Observances in Churches and by Individuals.

Gettysburg, the various boroughs and rural communities of Adams County will join with people all over the country in observing next Sunday as Mothers' Day. The day has been special reference will be made to the occasion and appropriate services will be conducted. The wearing of the white flower is the usual custom of individuals observing the occasion and this will doubtless be generally done here as elsewhere.

ADDING CASES

Will Improve Interior Appearance of Candy Store.

J. H. Kadel is improving his candy store on the Baltimore street by addition of several show cases, built in the wall, and adding materially to the shelf space.

COMMISSIONERS TO PAY BOUNTIES

Adams County Treasurers will be Paid in Full to April Fifteenth if Claims are Promptly Presented Decided on Tuesday.

That they would pay bounties for all noxious animals killed before April 15, 1915, was the decision reached by the commissioners of Adams County at their regular weekly meeting on Tuesday afternoon. The commissioners wish to clear up the entire matter, in view of the fact that the bounties for all animals killed after the above date, will be paid direct by the state.

Claims for bounties for animals killed before April 15th should be presented at once and the payments will be made by the commissioners between June 1 and 15. No payments whatever will be made after that date and those who fail to establish their claims before that time will have to go without compensation. A full report of the payments will be made to the State soon after June 15 and this is the time for settling up the "conscience" offer will then be at an end.

For animals killed after April 15 affidavit must be made before either a justice of the peace, a magistrate or an alderman that the animal killed was game protector. If it is made before any of the first three the skin must be presented to the county seat to be sent to the Board of Game Commissioners at Harrisburg. The game will not be sent if affidavit is made before the latter mentioned officials. Claims are allowed to charge 25 cents for the affidavit where only one name is involved. Where more than one animal is named 50 cents is secure the payment of a claim of bounty through fraud or misrepresentation is declared by law to be a misdemeanor and that any person aiding or assisting in the fraudulent collection of bounties, is liable to get into serious trouble.

No claim for bounty will be honored by the Board of Game Commissioners if it is not made by the person sent to that office.

Under the new affidavits for bounties on noxious animals should advise such claimants that after the claim or affidavit and the skin or skins are sent to Harrisburg they will receive check in due time if such claims are found to be correct. The checks will be issued by the State Treasurer for a month or six weeks after claim is made. If the claim is found to be false the claimant will be advised promptly of such action.

TOWN GETS ITS TALLEST OFFICER

Horace Smiley Honored to Succeed Mr. Sheeler. Will Stop Soliciting for Saragen. Must Be to Right in Centre Square.

Horace E. Smiley, 6 feet, 1¼ inches tall, 22 years old, weight 180 pounds, is Gettysburg's new night policeman having been elected Tuesday evening from a field of ten applicants to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John C. Sheeler. The new policeman is said to be the largest officer physically that the town ever had.

Among the other applicants was A. V. Welkert, who advanced his claims as officer of York, Hanover and Chester, and presented a petition for his election signed by forty five representative citizens. Mr. Welkert received one vote on the second ballot. Charles A. Fox, Clarence Hartman, H. E. McCleaf failed to receive any support, while William I. Shields, Irvin Bream, Ralph Bowers, Harry Bollinger, I. Trostle, received scattering votes. The contest resolved itself between Norman H. Schwartz and Mr. Smiley, the third and deciding ballot standing Smiley 9, Schwartz 8.

Charles S. Duncan, Esq., John Schmuck, D. J. Cover appeared before the fore council to ask action prohibiting the carnivorous solicitation by parties through the solicitation by garage "runners"—boys and young men who stand around as it comes into town and are said to receive some compensation for each one they bring to certain garages. The ordinance committee was instructed to drew up an ordinance to meet the situation.

Burgess Kichols asked an ordinance prohibiting persons from riding bicycles from opening and prohibiting automobile drivers from opening their "cut-out" in town. The ordinance committee was instructed to prepare and present such measure.

Thursday, May 13, is designated as "Municipal House Cleaning Day." The highway committee forces will remove accumulated rubbish. Every one take away no ashes or any matter that may be found. Supervisor Wm. Clutz, of Kennett Square, and should be here within a week. The committee is expected to be a great money and time saver.

Highway matters included the ordering of a notice to the Gettysburg and Harrisburg Railway to repair new curbs on both sides of North Washington street. It was decided by a notice to both railroads to plank property the crossing at Washington street's grade and recently put in ties to lay new pavement and curb at Carlisle street crossing. Also a motion to the highway committee to repair the crossing on East Middle street at the Post Room.

A communication form North Stratton street requesting that the grade of street between Water and Stevens was referred to the light committee. Mr. Trostle ashed a light in the center of each square from Centre Square to the Lutheran Seminary. The request was referred to the light committee for a report at the next meeting.

AUTO ACCIDENT

Four Hurt when Car Goes over Embankment.

Searight Stuart, son of W. S. Stuart, a well-known coal dealer of Carlisle, was seriously injured when the automobile ran over an embankment near Boiling Springs, Monday, and was taken to the Chambersburg Hospital. The ribs are torn loose from his spine and he is otherwise hurt. Miss Alice Mescenika, Carlisle, was badly bruised, and Miss Mabel Snyder, Connecta formerly of Carlisle, and Robert Bowers, Carlisle, were also slightly injured. The Carlisle men drove from their home and were joined by the young women in Greenoastle.

DIRECTORS PAY MORE FOR BREAD

Supply for County Home, Amounting to Ten Tons, will Cost Fifty Per Cent More than Last Year. Cost Contract not Awarded.

At the meeting of the board of poor directors of Adams County on Wednesday the contract for furnishing 20,000 pounds of bread for the County Home during the coming twelve months was awarded to Eugene C. Tawney at a bid of four and a quarter cents a pound.

Mr. Tawney had the contract last year at two and three quarters cents per pound. This, the directors agreed, was too low a sillow a reasonable profit and, in addition, the increase in the cost of flour occasioned by the war made a higher figure necessary. Mr. Tawney was the only bidder and he was given the contract to deliver the ten tons required to feed the inmates of the home. The bid was made at the figure named, less one per cent.

The contract was awarded provisional at this time of the year is that for the coal supply. There were a number of bidders and the directors gave several hours to considering the prices offered. They found finally that, on account of the diversity in the manner of bidding, the award of the coal contract would have to be held over. Some bid for delivery in one manner, some in another, so that investigation was necessary to find which would be most advantageous for the county to accept.

Wednesday's meeting was held at the County Home and the directors made their customary inspection and found the institution and the conditions of the property in the very best of condition.

UNEXPECTED DEFEAT

Members of Army Varsity Wrest Local Pitchers.

The West Point Seniors surprised Gettysburg's best ball team Tuesday afternoon when before the locals knew what was going on, had captured a 3 to 2 victory, winning in the 11th. Coach Plank started his substitute battery, using Earnest to pitch. He was hit freely but the cadets failed to score until Metter was tried. They scored two runs off his delivery and one men ton Howard was put in. Council decided to use Earnest and Hoar finished the game without allowing another score. West Point certainly has a fast team—the beatiest hitting college team in the country.

SELL FARM

Land Willed to Loyalville Institution Brings $2,600.

A farm containing 204 acres and 69 perches of land, which was willed to the Treasler Orphans' home, Loyalville, Pa., was sold recently at the court house public sale by authority of the Perry county court. The farm, which is located in Frankford township, Perry county, and was formerly owned by Jacob Treasler, who died in 1913, near H. Throne, tenant on the farm, for $2,600 an acre.

Recently on the claim that a greater number of acres than the institution if the place were sold and the money invested, the court was appealed to for an order of sale.

The National Park Commission has been advised that the visit of the War College officers, scheduled for June 14, will not be made at that time, on account of unforseen circumstances, and Pardee Field, which had been arranged for, will not be needed for that purpose.

WANT AUTOS FOR WAR VETERANS

Volunteers Asked to Take Brand Army Men and Others to and from Cemetery on Memorial Day. Tell Hows of your Willingness.

WANTED: fifteen automobiles to bring veterans to and from the cemetery on Memorial Day.

At the request of the local Grand Army Post, the town has assigned the commission to arrange for transportation of the veterans to and from the cemetery on Memorial Day.

It is estimated that accommodations for about fifty people will have to be secured. Fifteen automobiles will insure the ride in comfort to the passengers as well as the driver. There has not been any difficulty in former years to secure sufficient motors for the trip and we believe this appeal will be met by those ready to response from the automobile owners.

It should be a pleasure as well as a distinction to convey these men by whose efforts we have enjoyed an unparalleled era of prosperity and peace. The cars will have to be in line on Middle street in front of the Post Room with the drivers in readiness at 11:45 a. m. The procession is scheduled to move at 1:30, promptly, and the return will be made immediately after the exercises at the cemetery.

Names of these automobile owners who are willing to render this service can be left at the News office. The list should be complete at an early date so the work in showing your willingness to perform this slight service.

AT WORK AGAIN

Nut Daunted by Misfortune, Mr. John DeSpirito.

S. L. Johns, proprietor of the Imperial cigar factory, which was destroyed by fire in Mechanicsburg last Thursday evening, opened a factory in his stable at Blue Gables Monday morning. Twenty of the 35 his former hands were put to work and he will have the number of cigar makers as fast as room can be secured for them to work.

RACE THROUGH HERE

Coast to Coast Motorcycle Run on Lincoln Highway.

A transcontinental despatch race by relays of motorcycles over the Lincoln Highway is being planned for July. Fourteen riders will be asked to start the relay from the army post at Governors Island; it will end at the Presidio in San Francisco. The aid of the War Department is expected. The run will come through here.

TO EXPOSITION

Former Gettysburg Girl Wen Yachovs' Popularity Contest.

Miss Katherine Mauges, for some time a resident of Gettysburg, and well known here, has won the popularity contest of the Bear Department Store, York, and will be given a free tour to the Panama-Pacific Exposition. The contest was open to all the school teachers of York and Miss Mauges polled 80,000, or twice as many as her nearest opponent.

BEAT BOARD BILL

Pushmobile Tourist Party Takes Suburban Trip.

After failing to pay Mrs. Weaver, 114 Chambersburg street, for boarding and lodging, the three pushmobile tourists who came to Gettysburg Monday afternoon departed Tuesday for Chambersburg. They started at once sent to that place to put them under arrest. The party consisted of two men and a woman, who gave their names as Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Smith, Brooklyn. They gave Mrs. Maxwell roadster, minus the engine, as security and refused it when the engine was found in the rear.

Monday the Littlestown bus gave them a free ride to Gettysburg. Officials also gave similar service. They left Littlestown for Lower Strasburg, Pa., and hope to win a wager of $1000 which would be given for Belgian relief work.

Supper and lodging were secured at Mrs. Weaver's home for the party and the trio skipped out without ceremony Tuesday morning. They were arrested at Chambersburg in the afternoon and allowed to go after paying the bill.

TELLS HOW SHE TURNED OVER GREAT CONCERN TO EMPLOYEES

Mrs. Warbasse Says Marriage and Not Business Taught Her Need to Study Social Problems.

Looks on Absentee Ownership as Curse, So Gave Workers Complete Control of $5,000,000 Plant.

"I was just a step in the direction of the future," is step in the way I see things going."

Thus spoke Mrs. James P. Warbasse, the woman responsible for the most unique step in the management sharing plan known to industrial history, whereby control of the principal of the $10,000,000 Beardsley Manufacturing company in the full control of its employees

Mrs. Warbasse lives at 286 Washington avenue, Brooklyn. She was the largest stockholder of the old Beardsley company, of which her father, H. K. Tyler, was president for many years. She inherited his holdings and fell in a position to control the company by self.

In H. H. Tyler started in to e $1 a week clerk-mail-clerk meant wielding the iron hand over his men. Then he gave his men all friends of his left. Brooklyn-ites, and soon found he could obtain their bonds solely over the "drudges" of his daughter Agnes. Mrs. Warbasse admits, with that sweet, even voice that a growing thought in sociological problems was amid surroundings of luxury.

The one man power in the industrial world was responsible, she said in an interview, "The time will come when the men who are employed in corporations will control the corporations for which they now labor.

Evolution or Revolution!

"It will come either through evolution or revolution. I prefer the first. I believe the crux of the Dunsmore company, of Bristol, Conn., which has been involved in exhaustion to the demands of community ownership, will be solved. Whether it will be evolution through the fear of revolution, I do not know. But it will come any.

"While it is true that this plan could not have been operative without the money back of it, I believe the contribution to me. It belongs to it. We inaugurated the plan in the Beardsley Co. company, but in 1875 advanced it through the Beardsley Manufacturing Co. Charles P. Beardsley, treasurer of the Beardsley Co., was the man who filled in.

"First I was a girl I went to Packer Institute, just as hundreds of other Brooklyn girls do now, and when I was through with school I went out into society. I was a society girl and thought hardly any and wasted a lot of time.

"Then I married Dr. James P. Warbasse, himself a product of Brooklyn institution any woman can have. Then I began considering the problems of life.

"It was probably in this way I became interested in old Mr. Dennison's original idea.

She Explains Scheme.

"It began to see that the greatest industrial menace was absentee ownership. Charles S. Dennison, whom I have known since I was a child, was a graduate of Harvard, a brilliant man and tremendously interested in all these problems. Together we graduated the scheme of the plan which has since put into effect, only it is not as radical as I would have liked it when I first.

"The plan provided for a reorganization. Its aim was to transfer to the men its entire property and assets, including the good will, and to make them subject to its liabilities, to a new corporation. The new corporation was to be composed of men under the laws of Massachusetts

"It was understood that the employees stock at par value of $100 per share.

FINDS STRANGE NEW METAL

Russian Scientist Reported by Cold Process.

A marvelous new metal, likely to have a far-reaching effects on science as radium had, has been discovered by the Russian scientist Prof. Orloff, experiments of interests from Petrograd, is reported.

In the presence of an cold this metal which is called "Orlovium" produces such an excessive degree of cold that it is said to be impossible to touch it. It was immediately reduced to powder by the use of a hammer and a steel anvil. A large piece of granite was the instrument of the board of trustees of the community. He will still continue his duties as head of the department of modern progress and will have the cutting of the cloth under his direction. The customers of the institution still will be taken care of, for he can't stand the typewriter's click.

$100,000 HOTELS FOR IDLE.

PRISONERS UP FOR SENTENCE

Court Hears Pleas for Leniency. Bergendoll, Magazine Solicitor, Free on Parole. Not Held for Washington Authorities.

Jail sentences of one month each were imposed in Adams County Court on Saturday upon Edward Wilkens, aged 22, and William Glass, aged 18, who pleaded guilty to several larcenies in and about Biglerville. Fine sentences will run concurrent.

In behalf of Wilkens, J. Donald Swope, Esq. stated that the young man was believed to be under the influence of another when he committed the crimes. Mr. Swope presented a petition signed by a number of Biglerville citizens asking leniency. A similar petition for Glass was presented by Edgar A. Weaver, Esq.

District Attorney Wible called attention to the fact that neither petition asked either parole or suspension of sentence. This, he said, he regarded as significant as indicating the sentiment of the community; and the Court stated that he felt the force of this argument. Both defendants had been in jail since February 1st.

Among the places at which they operated were the farm of Martin Boyer, the home of Harry Sheffer, and the restaurant of R. C. Walker in Biglerville, and the Court pointed out the evident inclination to thieving which was more apparent than if only one instance had been involved. Leniency was imposed, the Court stated, not only as a warning to others, but as a lesson to themselves

The Court showed little sympathy with the effort to get a pardon upon M. E. Bergendoll, the engineering draftsman, who has been three charges of false pretense. The young man is a graduate of Lehigh University, prominent in appearance, and nothing was produced to show that he had ever been in trouble before. The Court said:

Edward A. Wenner, Esq., presented a petition signed by a large amount involved in his silenced illegal practices here was $2.40 and that can be settled out of court. There is no record statement about silenced illegal practices here. The Court indicated clemency District Attorney Wible pointed out that the District of Columbia where Bergendoll was wanted on a similar charge.

The Court not only placed the boy on parole but refused to allow him to leave and gave him his freedom, placing the costs on the county. He has been in jail for 60 days awaiting trial and the Court, in showing leniency, stated that he would be given credit for the time spent in the county jail but taught him that he must not break the law and the only proper way to conduct one's life.

David Groff was given a Penitentiary sentence of not less than one nor more than three years for stealing a horse, buggy, and harness from his step-father, G. E. Walker, of East Berlin, and was placed on parole in January 1914 and that he has violated the conditions of his parole man, George Simpson, associated with him in the crime, was given a six months in the county jail.

Joseph McDarnall, of Hamiltonban township, charged with selling liquor without a license, was given thirty days in jail and assessed the "fee proof" upon his release from jail.

George Craig, found guilty of malicious mischief in destroying a fence at the home of Peter Shultz, gave his confession as the reason for the offense. Craig had been in jail since March 4th on a charge of false pretenses which on no visible means of support. The defendant was placed under parole for the term of sentence, arranging for the costs.

Ralph Bowers, 19 years old, and Frank Morton, 20 years, two tramps, said they would never return to this county when sentenced to 30 days. They claimed they had been "on the road" only a few months. They will serve 30 days if they are good and receive 20 days more.

David Wolf, of Berwick township, who stole several chickens valued at $7.00 or $8.00 was given 30 days for sentence. In extenuation of the offense, he was stated that he was penniless, prior to an illness with typhoid fever, had never shown any disposition to be a vagrant or criminal. His mother's ill health was urged for a leniency, together with the petition from various well known neighbors while the father made a personal plea for leniency. The penna was given drunkenness as the reason for his offense. He was stated that he was a period of two years. The costs were placed on the defendant.

Thomas and John Pence, the two Methorpstown men who were convicted of assault and battery upon D. L. Johns, after his failure to pay them some wages they claimed, were next called. J. Donald Swope, Esq., presented a petition signed by 240 representative citizens of McSherrystown asking clemency on the ground that it was their first offense, that they were peaceful and law-abiding citizens and would not likely further offend.

The Court pointed out that physical violence was not the proper method to use in settling debts, and then placed each under two years parole and two and hundred behavior bond all citizens "and especially toward S. L. Johns." The defendants were ordered to pay the costs and when it was stated that they were poor, the Court suggested that some one of them who had petitioned for leniency might help to meet this part of the question.

The jury in the case of the administrators of the estate of H. J. Weiler against the Ohio Farmers Insurance Company brought in a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $3093.43. Motion was at once made for a new trial, the reasons to be filed in four days.

300,000 TAGS

Hunters to Wear Salmon Licenses this Year.

Adams county hunters will sport salmon-colored license tags on their coats when they go after the woods next Fall. The orders for the printing of the tags have been given to the printer and they will be delivered to the county treasurer before the open fall season opens. It is expected that in the neighborhood of 300,000 hunters will be granted licenses for the season.

The State Game Commission is preparing for the enforcement of the State's new bounty law and the blanks are being sent to justices of the peace for the filing of claims under the new system. These blanks are to be returned to the State Game Commission after an officer of the commission has investigated the claim and that the justice has personally inspected them. The bounties will be paid from proceeds of hunting licenses for the current year, the proceeds of the last two years being sufficient for game propagation and protection and for payment of bounties for which claims are filed.

The incentive to be paid under the bounty law, as amended, are as follows: $6; fox, $2; weasel, $1, and mink, $1.

HELD GETS CAR

Horse to Set Aside Sale in Favor of J. A. Bing.

The liquor license of the A. C. Bell cafe, in York, was transferred on Monday to C. Curtis Held, son of Julius Held. The attempt of J. A. Bing, of Hanover, in Orphans, to acquire the Bell license and fixtures by offering $4,800 for the cafe's liquor Mr. Held's bid of $4,800 at public sale, was unsuccessful. The court decided that it had no power to fix the occasion in which the case was brought before it, but that Mr. Held had bought, accordingly it dismissed Mr. Bing's petition to have his sale confirmed.

ANOTHER TRIAL

Band will Charge for All Engagements, they Say.

Another effort to save the Citizens' band will be made, according to action taken Monday evening when eighteen members met at the Engine house. It was decided to continue practicing again next Monday, without the services of a leader, and that a concert giving open air concerts every two weeks during the summer. All engagements will be charged for, except those asked by the firemen. A. B. Plank was elected president, and Emory Saltzie, secretary, until a permanent organization can be effected.

OPERATE QUARRY

New Working Plants at Bittinger and Penn Mar.

Operations of the stone quarry and the lime kilns, purchased from L. H. Alwine by the Bittinger Lime and Stone company, recently formed, consisting of the same persons who operate Bittinger's other plants, were started at Bittinger, were started this week. Employment is given to fifteen men. Shacks have been erected on the site of the quarry, where the employes will lodge. It is expected that the force of workmen will be increased as rapidly as the quarry and kilns are put into action. The corporation will be reorganized several months ago, shortly after the purchase of the plant, for the purpose of crushing and pulverizing stone and the burning of lime.

COLLISION

Head-On Collision Occurred Near Cabin Run, Occupants Escaped Unhurt.

What might have resulted in a fatal accident was strangely averted when Floyd L. Williams, of Reading, was riding a motorcycle and towing another one near Cabin Run.

John Sorg swerved at the White Pine sanatorium was coming in an automobile in the other direction. While rounding a curve Sorg and the motorcyclist met. The latter was thrown and turned out to the side of the road but both chose the same side and met in terrific headon collision. The motorcycle did not stop until it had climbed upon the front of the machine. The force of the impact threw the driver off to one side and he escaped without either cuts or bruises. The automobile party also escaped injury.

LOST END OF THUMB

Morning Accident at the Gettysburg Furniture Factory.

Guy Sterman, of East Middle street, employed at the Gettysburg Furniture Factory as a stock foreman, had the misfortune of his hand taken off at the first joint on Tuesday. Mr. Sherman went to the jointer to finish several pieces of wood and in some manner got his thumb caught. A physician gave the necessary surgical attention.

Mrs. J. L. Knoblhart, of Harrisburg, is a guest for a few days at the home of the editor of THE COMPILER, on West Middle street.

Mrs. H. B. Mrick, of Washington, is spending several days in town with friends and relatives.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS HERE

Rear Admiral of the United States Navy Spends Day on Gettysburg Battlefield. Wallace Nutting, Famous Artist, also here.

Visitors of distinction toured the battlefield Saturday, several parties of national prominence being among the many motorists who visited there.

Rear Admiral J. D. Adams, Captain A. C. Hodgson and Mrs. Hodgson made up one automobile party which came here from Washington and spent the morning and afternoon at the battlefield, intending to return home before Sunday. They were registered at Hotel Gettysburg.

Wallace Nutting, the widely known and very popular artist, was a Gettysburg visitor Saturday. He was accompanied by Mrs. Nutting and together were traveling by motor. Mr. and Mrs. Nutting reside at Framingham, Massachusetts, and they are touring for several weeks in this section of the country.

Colonel Bunker

By M. QUAD

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

I was just thinking, stish," said Colonel Bunker as he walked out of the window, "I was just thinking of no children to whom I could convey a deed but, in fact, with whom this thing came about I had not yet drawn my mother on the field of honor. In the southern town where I first found out my skin was a color to wear a dress parade instead of young men, and I was one of them.

"We were quests, sah. We were, we garnished, and we were invited. To eat, not about our hands, and we took to the dance floor directly.

"It was a number we kept clear of the dances, and there were only wives, for we were bachelors. But destiny had something laid up for me, and at the proper time we learned what it was. When a dapper little man dropped into the room one day and gave his name as Professor Mayo and explained that he was something of a naturalist we had no idea that he soon covered destiny.

"It was about a week after the professor's arrival, and some of us were talking about the war, when he inquired if what six of us sat up the tavern verandah to see was a mockingbird's nest in a fig bush, when the stranger appeared with a ladder and took down it as we looked.

"'Why, I have the honor of seeing your names!' he said.

"I says it as Buckner, of Ohio.

"'Bunkery Buskey!' he repeated. 'Just the name I want with me!'

"Hello! Hello! What do you mean?' I says to him, quite straightout Yankee.

"'Good sah, the name was deliberately chosen by me.'

"I suppose the thought I carried things off very well, but I was in a state of mind that needed him up cord and tern me away. He received it with a bow and a smile.

"'Sah, I am a naturalist, and I am in search of deed for sparrow wits arranged for with this hotel. I am in search of a professor of natural history, beside a register for a young lady's book. Can you help me?'

"I says to him that I should put up with him. Should I tell or only wound him? I was in a state of mind that after the blades had crossed. The mind that I was my friend's second and not I finally believed my self. Then I says to him that I would be my friend's subject anyway or send him to the right. He did not understand.

"We talked some more, and I says to him that I thought I might be the best person to show him the way. He gave me his address and we parted. He was about six weeks would do.

"The 1st of June I went to see him in two minutes. He could have killed me then and the next five, but he stayed his hand.

"It was a big house, and he made a little the last part of half an hour, he did not know that I was there. He was at it. I went bitter terms as the servant who showed me in told me that he didn't know who I was or what I was there for. He sent that excuse to challenge the professor and received a reply.

"Good, sah, they didn't let me have the room in the house. He brought them along and told them at the front of them to show me to the servants' hall. It came on the street and politely said to me:

"'Sah, a name has made a mistake in my name.'

"'What do you mean, only sah?' I says to him.

"'If your name is severed on my name.'

"I says you must answer for this in front.

"'Come to command.'

"So we did start, you see, with each other to see, but they told me that before to see, but they told me that before to see, but they told me that before

Waterproof Matches.

Before you go camping, or away on an outing, buy some waterproof matches, and see that they are always in the pocket of the vessel and canoe parafin, and, while it is still hot, dip the end of each match into this and lay it out carefully until cool and dry. This coat of parafin makes the match absolutely waterproof.—Mr. Chas' Magazine.

STATE OFFICIAL TO VISIT TOWN

Water Pressure, Fire Company Apparatus, Feasibility of Standpipe Proposition and Other Things will be Investigated.

State Fire Marshal Joseph Baldwin has written to the committee of town council, on recommendation for fire protection methods, that he will be in this town in the latter part of next week to go over the local situation but that he will be here in two weeks time and then take the matter in hand.

Owing to the anticipated absence of Councilman Stock from town for the next ten days, it was decided at Tuesday's meeting of Council that, if Mr. Baldwin could not come this week, he should be asked to postpone his inspection until Mr. Stock's return. The arrangement indicated has accordingly been made.

Mr. Baldwin has in his possession all the data relative to the water supply at all the plugs in town. This was secured in the form of a test and observance of the system of fire protection. It was done by the town's means of fire protection.

MAKE ROOM FOR TEN ORPHANS

Mrs. Butt again Chosen Head of Auxiliary Board at Hoffman Orphanage, Will Furnish Rooms for Children. Applications Refused, Etc.

For the purpose of providing accommodations for ten more children at the Hoffman Orphanage, near Two Taverns, the Ladies Auxiliary of the institution announced at their meeting in York on Wednesday that they would furnish a portion of the old dormitory building which the farmhouse has already been bought and the balance will be secured in the near future.

Because of lack of accommodations, many applications for admittance have been refused recently. The requests are numerous and the space limited. Funds are not at hand for the erection of other buildings, and the action of the women is merely providing room for ten others in the old homestead which will serve to relieve the immediate necessity for meeting the present conditions.

The ladies also announced that they had ordered swings and croquet sets for the use of the children at Hoffman at the home.

Mrs. J. L. Butt, of Gettysburg, was re-elected president of the Auxiliary; Mrs. Carman, of Carlisle, secretary, and Mrs. Mary Gross Hoffman, treasurer. The position of vice president, formerly vacated by the resignation of Mrs. Jordon, of Hanover, will not be filled until the next regular business session.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. George Wenck, in York, and, after the business was transacted, a very pleasant social time was spent. Luncheon was served and the ladies adjourned in the afternoon with arrangements made for the next session at the Ocker House, Littlestown, on the first Thursday in November.

BOOK MEMORIAL DAY SPECIALS

Western Maryland Announces Several Excursions and will Likely Arrange Others. Reading Is Bring Usual Number. Sports Planned.

That both railroads entering Gettysburg will make special trips for traffic to this place on Memorial Day is indicated in preliminary bookings now, four weeks in advance of the annual celebration.

C. F. Brown, general passenger agent of the Western Maryland, has notified the local office that excursions have been booked from Baltimore, York and Hanover, and it is expected that later advices will be received concerning the excursions from Frostburg, Cumberland, Keyser and points in the Cumberland Valley.

The regular trains are all to be equipped with extra cars, according to Mr. Stewart's instructions, which also provide for extensive advertising by means of flyers and newspaper space.

The Reading is expected to run special trains from Harrisburg and Philadelphia and they will bring their usual quota. Automobiles will and their share provided the day is accompanied by clear weather.

So far as the Gettysburg is concerned, the observance will be much the same as in other years, though lacking any unusual feature such as the presence of United States troops. Five hundred or more veterans will be observed at noon, when all—veterans and citizens generally—are expected to observe the period by the calling the deeds of the heroic dead.

Gettysburg will likely have a quiet day in the line of sports for both the college and town teams have baseball games scheduled. The opening of the Blue Ridge League will likely be inaugurated here on that day and Hanover is said to be the most probable opponent.

DAY OF VICTORIES

Four Teams at Local Institution Triumph over Opponents.

Gettysburg College athletes had a successful day on Saturday and no less than four victories owner interscholastions were registered. The base ball team won from Villanova on Nisbet Field by the score of 4 to 3. The tennis team was from Mercersburg at the latter place, five matches to one. The relay team defeated the Carlisle Indians in a medley race at Carlisle, Bontadt running last for Gettysburg and overcoming a twenty yard lead in a half mile. The Prep base ball team won from Dickinson Academy on Prep Campus 10 to 3.

The Hauser Furniture Factory team won from Orrtanna on Prep campus Saturday 15 to 5. The High School suffered the only defeat of the day losing to Frederick at that place 1 to 0.

FOR EIGHTY GAMES

Schedule Committee of Blue Ridge League Completes Work.

With the Blue Ridge League limited to six teams, and all preliminaries out of the way, the schedule committee is now planning the series of games for the summer. The season is to open on May 22 and 23, and players at the various towns will report on May 15 and 16.

It is thought best to play a two-game series at each place four times during the season, giving each club 40 games at home and 40 abroad. This would use every week end, at the same time would not tire the fans by too many games in succession with one team.

FOREST VANDALS

Tramps or Fishermen Cut down Young Pines at Gravelbottom.

Two or more tramps or vandal fishermen spent part of Friday night on the open ground where the old stone postoffice long ago stood on the highway between Caledonia park and Gravelbottom inn. They cut down for a test some forty-two pines, inserting severe punishment with a fine and jail term if caught.

Forestry Commissioner Conklin, visited the ground Saturday morning and, much interested, secured property and investigation with the hope of capturing the offenders.

MANY ATTENDED M'CLEAN FUNERAL

Episcopal Services and Several Hymns Mark Funeral in Memorial Church. Adams County Bar Association Takes Formal Action.

Simplicity marked the funeral of Judge Judge William McClean, at 2:30 o'clock Monday morning in the Memorial Church of the Comforter. A brief service was held at the late residence on York street before the body was taken to the church.

The beautiful funeral service of the Episcopal church was conducted by Rev. Clifford G. Twombley, rector of St. James church, Lancaster, personal acquaintance of Judge McClean. He was assisted by the rector, Rev. William B. Hooper. The choir was formed by a number of the college boys and favorite hymns were sung including "Peace, Perfect Peace," "Forever with the Lord", and "Hark, Hark My Soul". As a custom-ary mark of the Episcopal church, there was no address or sermon.

Interment in the southern section of Evergreen cemetery, was made by the following attorneys and by his learning, integrity and fortune, was held high the regard and esteem of his fellow members of the Bar.

After the last rite devoted to the services of his fellow men and his Divine Master, the body was taken to lying the reward of a faithful servant. FRESH AIR CURE FOR CRIME IS NEW ILLINOIS PROPOSAL.

Joliet Warden Would Give Plot Offenders a Chance to Change.

The fresh air cure for first offenders, dungeons, evil houses and the stone walls for habitual criminals, is the basis of the program Warden E. M. Allen of the Illinois state prison at Joliet based his work upon.

Allen has emulated to Governor Dunne, one of the most radical prison changes in the state's penal system and if given his will but short shift to the normal prison population of Lincoln the Great Comforter of all sorrows, in the death of their father, husband, Bar, out county, and the state have been bereft of a learned jurist, a wise counsellor, and a faithful citizen, an honorable gentleman."

A NEAT AND PRACTICAL WORK APRON.

Pictorial Review Apron No. 6205. Sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches waist. Price, 10 cents.

Apron for ladies and misses. In all of cotton, always appropriate.

Both economical and smart is this work apron for ladies and misses. It is made of percale, gingham or linen and is exceedingly neat.

How to look attractive though pursuing maid-of-all-work is a problem that is largely solved by the use of a becoming work apron for ladies and misses. It is also valuable in protecting the pretty gingham or any of the materials used for the purpose, from the dust and confetti for medium size. If made without straps at the waist the yards will be sufficient.

Attractive lines are given to the apron by the curved sides and rounded front. Perhaps the prettiest part of the finish, which may be either round or square, is the pocket with its scallops, though they may be omitted if preferred, the result is exceedingly dainty made of sheer white lawn trimmed with bias or finished with a hemstitched hem.

If 27-inch material is used, and nearly all of the fabrics now in vogue may be employed for the purposes are this wide, the medium size will require three and one-half yards of material with which to make it. First cause the entire edge to be hemmed, or finished in any way, therefore, in arranging along the opposite side of the material, so that the top used it should be laid on a lengthwise fold of the goods, with the selvedge at lengthwise thread—and pocket opposite.

It is very easy to make the apron. First line its belt and sew to upper edge of front gore, as shown in Fig. 1, the upper sides of bib, adjusting as to inter-front even. Cross the straps in back and fasten each end with buttons and buttonholes. Loops of braid may form the straps if more fanciful effect is desired.

Find the center of the pocket by large "p" perforations, turn in hem at upper edge and shape the scallops by the notches; also sides cross-line of strand "o" perforations.

Colored embroidery with an introduction of black here and there would be very nice as a contrast, or the pocket for white embroidery on a colored background, as preferred. All-white is of course, always appropriate.

FOR WOULD BE FARMERS.

Should Try It Out First as Permanent Before Buying Farms.

The United States department of agriculture receives many letters from city people who have read glowing accounts of the wealth that may be made on the farms. A large percentage of these people have already bought farms land. Some of them appear to believe that the reason all farmers are not rich is because of extravagance, carelessness, ignorance and lack of energy.

"As a matter of fact, farmers, as a class, are intelligent, industrious and successful, and they are not to be classed as good business judgment. Further, those who have made a thorough study of the business and have decided that it is not an easy matter to make money on the farm. Only the most practical and experienced farmers are making any considerable profit out of their business. Most of the money that is made on the farm in recent years has been made, not by farming, but by the increase in the value of farm lands. In the culture of things that the newer counties immediately after—some one will own this land when the value becomes sufficiently increased to enhance sums to decline.

"It is true that occasionally a city bred family makes good on the farm, but this is the exception and not the rule. It is always a risk to invest in a farm unless you have had at least a thorough study of that business. Many city people who have saved up a few hundred dollars and who have had in their own farms experience have been misled with a rosy vision of the joys and profits in farming, buy their farms at high prices and thereby lose the greater part of their savings in a very short time. Only very rarely paid fifty cents each, and signed a mortgage for $10,000 on a farm that was then assessed at $5,000. Another family that had saved $2,000 used that amount to buy a farm and mortgaged them land and when their crops were destroyed by a flood they still owed considerably more than they had paid for it. In recent years they have worked almost day and night on the farm without being able to reduce the principal. These instances could be multiplied almost indefinitely.

"The individual who has great care should be taken to get a good farm at a fair price. The man who can demonstrate that the farm is worth is to his vile fathers. The government cannot tell us from that does not pay interest on the investment, fertilizer and labor expended and wages for any time spent thereon. Then pay and not greedy.

"Even when great care is taken in making the investment only to acquire land covered with timber and fine quality stream fishing. Generally the best land is that on the slopes to the hills and hills and the usual corn and grain, Charles E. Lady has the contract.

USE SHIRTS TO TAKE TRENCH

French Soldiers Put Them Over Coats Owing to Snow.

Describing the capture of a line of trenches in the north a concernable about difficulties of the attack, the writer makes of no unusual piece of strategy:

"The crowning before there had been a large fall of snow, and in order that the bright moonlight showed up every object with extraordinary clearness against the white background. The French Colonial Reserve and Territorial, which had planned a raid on the enemy's trenches, got busy with the sewing, found by project compromised with a ripping sound, like a hot knot idea. Every man pulled off his shirt, pulled it over his head and his other jacket and vest. Thus they crept through the snow as far as the line of German trenches without being seen until the charge was sounded."

ASK THINKERS FOR BRAINS.

Scientists Say Study of Gray Matter Will Help Solve Problem.

The brains of exceptionally brilliant men, leaders in the world's affairs, be, in addition to the usual duties, a study after death, according to high authorities in the scientific world.

Dr. L. O. Howard, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C., and Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, have already signed cards authorizing the removal of their brains for study after death.

Dr. Howard said: "I am interested in science would offer objection to dissection of my brain after death."

ENGLAND'S ARMY 720,000 MEN

Britain's Troops on Continent Are to Be Eighteen Divisions.

The British forces on the continent are being organized into six strong divisions of three army corps each, under command of General Sir Douglas Haig, Lieutenant General Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien, General Archibald Hunter, General Sir Hamilton Ewart and Lieutenant General Bruce Hamilton.

Taking home or base troops as 40,000 men, this gigantic indicates that England has 720,000 men all told, ready to go on the continent.

CADETS VISIT BATTLEFIELD

West Point Seniors, under Instruction of Tac Officers, here for Annual Study. Taken Over the Field.

The Senior Class from the United States Military Academy at West Point arrived here Friday after six o'clock on Monday for the annual historical study of the Gettysburg Battlefield, which always forms one of the concluding features of the last year's work at the institution. The class, one of the largest to visit Gettysburg in recent years, is composed of 154 cadets who are in charge of ten officers.

Colonel Fleheger, who has many friends here led the party, and the other officers are Major Pancle, Captains Steese, Goethals, Downing, Strong, Jones, Daley, and Sultan, and Lieutenant Schlieper. The class headquartered at the Eagle Hotel and Hotel Gettysburg.

The special vestibuled train left the Point Sunday evening and made it through trip to Gettysburg. Soon after arriving here, the coming officers of the Battlefield Park were presented to their hotels and had breakfast. At about o'clock they divided into four squads and were taken in the large motor automobile wagons to various portions of the field, each under their officer-instructors.

HAS RESIGNED

Mr. Robertson and Family will Make Home in Harrisburg.

John Robertson, who has been manager of the Gettysburg Gazette for the past three years, has resigned his position and gone to Harrisburg where he will have charge of a large rooming house on Market street.

While here Mr. Robertson greatly increased the efficiency of the local paper. His work was not confined to town, as well as those in the various sections of the county that he visited in the interest of the publication before his departure. Mr. Robertson's family will join him at Harrisburg in a few weeks.

NEW WALK

Good News for Strollers who Prefer the Level.

Work was started on Monday on the construction of a cinder property of a cement walk 1100 feet in length and extending along the west side of Baltimore Street, commencing from Water street to Lincoln avenue. The pavement will be four feet in the width and have the usual curb and gutter, Charles E. Lady has the contract.

MINISTERS MEET

Will Hold no Further Sessions until September.

At the meeting of the Adams County Ministerial Association on Monday, Dr. T. J. Markley read a very able paper on "The Duty of the Church Regarding the Doctrine of Sin, in the Light of Doctrine". Adjournment was taken to the second Monday in September. The ministers had dinner at Spangler's Restaurant.

CROSBY'S SERVICE IN TOWN CHURCH

Large Congregation Hears Hymns of Famous Writer who Died Recently at the Age of Ninety Five Years. Her Biography.

An audience of a thousand interested persons took part in and enjoyed a memorial service for the late Fanny J. Crosby in St. James Lutheran church Sunday evening. Tribute was paid to the blind author of 8000 sacred songs whose hymns and hymns were sung by the congregation, which filled every available place in the large church auditorium.

Preceding the opening of the service the Sunday School Orchestra gave a fifteen minute program of sacred music, playing two compositions in which sacred hymns were prepared. The organization is one of the best in town and its music was a fitting opening to the service of the evening. "Draw Me Nearer", one of Miss Crosby's best known compositions, opened the service and Mrs. J. B. Richard was as soloist "Crossing the Rocking Chair", a song written in memory of the many happy hours spent by Miss Crosby with her grandmother during the early years of her life, which she received much of her religious instruction.

"Safe in the Arms of Jesus", said to have been written in twenty minutes after an unexpected request for a song. "The Bright Forever" and "Never Give Up", were other hymns sung by the congregation together with "Pass Me Not" which was the means of the conversion of a young negro man in the South, and "Rescue the Perishing" which was a favorite hymn of Miss Crosby of its influence on his life, a letter which received Sunday evening.

The story of the unusual and remarkable life of the blind hymn writer was most interestingly told by Rev. Mr. Baker and the service came to a close after the singing of "Saved by Grace" and "Blessed Assurance".

It was a fitting observance and tribute by a congregation which is known for its love of beautiful sacred music, and a service which was gres - enjoyed by many persons not seen ons of that congregation.

ORCHARD WORK

Demonstration here in Spraying for Codling Moth.

The demonstrations by the orchard men of the Bureau of Zoology of the Department of Agriculture, Harrisburg, to show how to make and apply the material in spraying for the codling moth and other plant diseases will begin in several counties of Pennsylvania on Thursday, May 4th. The demonstration here will be in the orchard of C. C. Jacobs on Tuesday, May 11. Under otherwise unfavorable conditions the meeting will be held at one o'clock on the afternoon of the day mentioned, and the demonstrator will be there to-ward-off rain or sun. If the weather should be unfit for spraying, the public will have an opportunity to hear an address brought down to date on the subject of spraying to prevent worray fruits, and will be able to see how the material is made and to ask questions and get such other help as the State's experts have to give.

SHOWER

Mr. and Mrs. Luther McDonnell were visited at their home on Baltimore street, Monday evening by a large number of friends who gave them a shower of useful articles and household articles which were highly appreciated. A very pleasant evening was spent after the surprise of the "shower" had been enjoyed.

WILL OPERATE SEWER PLANT

Borough Committee will Comply with State Request, Beginning Work at once. Likely to Entail Large Expenditure.

Following the visit of J. Warren Forstenhagh, Inspector of the State Board of Health, the members of the town council has decided to resume at once the operation of the hypochlorite of lime plant which was donated to Gettysburg by the state on the completion of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle in 1913. The operation of the plant will cost the town a considerable sum but will do away with the nuisance of the erection of a disposal plant.

David Caunit has been secured to run the plant. When it was in operation last year it required about four hours a day to manipulate it and the latter has been secured as assistant to Caunit. The following is a quotation from the report of Inspector Forstenhagel:

The Hoekeffler foundation appeared to be better located as regards a possible nuisance to dwellings than the factory from which the Hoekeffler products are manufactured.

Fires. The Dutch government was prepared to provide shelter and food for the refugees but did not provide fuel until its more.

Fuel. All refugees were suffering intensely for lack of warm clothing, a great deal of which was available but were trying widely to meet.

Third Class. The question was undermining the country and character of the refugees.

Clothing Supplies Poor In.

Early in December large shipments of clothing intended for the Belgians began to arrive in Rotterdam. By agreement with the U. S. Legation in Rotterdam no effort is to be made to distribute these goods to refugees in Belgium. Mr. Forstenhagen was requested to take charge of it.

The clothing had been sent from the United States, friends and relatives of the first class, which was under the care of Miss. Hoeckffe, Baroness Van Eek and Baroness van Olpe, Dutch.

Light, airy rooms were set aside. Fifty were ordered. Twenty sewing machines were installed, along with cutting tables, fitting rooms, stoves, etc. A supply of woolen yarn was ordered for women and children who could not sew, but could knit socks.

Sewing Classes Formed.

From the first the experiment was successful. A better spirit appeared among the women. Steadily, but with no great rapidity, new wares and garments accumulated. The scraps from cutting were used, and young girls and children pieced quilts from them. This done in one week produced 400 articles of clothing, two-thirds underwear.

GROUP OF SIX SENTIANS WHO HAVE SO DOCTORS.

It was of very good quality and much of it absolutely new. Communities had received supplies. They had been told often what it could afford. In some instances families had taken this opportunity to clear out their garrets. Others had purchased new materials just to turn over to them such which, although new, had become unusable.

Some communities had packed together, with the clothing, canned goods, toys, dolls, silverware, tobacco, etc., with the wedding gift when these cases were opened the contents were found to be an indescribable mass of rotted matter only fit for the rendish fire.

To classify and distribute this clothing the commission was given the use of a small warehouse. Some thirty women received for knitting were secured from among the refugees. Earning 15 January another warehouse was obtained.

Up to Feb. 22 12,470 cases had been sorted and sent to various parts of Netherland and Holland. These cases contained 1,381,572 articles of clothing, of which 914,222 went to the institute in Belgium and 472,350 to Belgian refugees in Holland.

Thousands of Articles.

Among them were 241,054 articles of underwear, 139,000 pairs of shoes, 100,000 coats, 31,013 caps and jackets and 16,350 trousers. Of socks and stockings 324,675 articles, including 94,825 cloaks 62,110 jackets and coats and 13,177 shawls and 6,000 articles of bedding. Of this, 250,301 of which were suits. Some 70,000 articles were given to the poor, and household goods, were also sent to Belgium. Many articles were given in Holland to limited 125,020 articles for women, 142,440 articles for women and 102,541 articles for children.

Most complaints among the fugitives of the Belgian exodus was the fact that the refugees had nothing to do. All the women in the concentration camp in the Thurnhout hotel in Rotterdam, containing 750 refugees, were united together and asked whether they would help manufacture underwear. Their response was prompt and pleasant.

A dressmaker from Brussels, himself a refugee, was engaged as supervisor

TELLS OF RELIEF FOR BELGIANS AND FRIGHTFUL PLIGHT OF SERVIA

Rockefeller Foundation Reports on Aid by America to Refugees Who Fled Into Holland.

Also Shows Conditions in Balkans to Combat Which Plague Experts Have Been Sent Out.

FOLLOWING the occupation of Belgium by the German forces, probably 800,000 Belgians sought refuge in Holland. The sanitary saved nothing beyond the clothing they wore.

The queen of Holland issued a proclamation welcoming refugees, and systematic efforts to feed and shelter those who could not be taken into private homes were promptly set on foot.

A central committee was organized, with headquarters in Amsterdam. But all these efforts soon fell far short of the pitiful necessity.

The Hoekeffler foundation appeared better located as regards a possible nuisance to dwellings. The following is a quotation from the report of Inspector Forstenhagel:

Fires. The Dutch government was prepared to provide shelter and food for the refugees but did not provide fuel until its more.

Fuel. All refugees were suffering intensely for lack of warm clothing, a great deal of which was available but were trying widely to meet.

ces and underclothes for men and one-third underclothes for women and children.

The war relief commission paid the rent of the machines, cost of materials, and the wages of the seamstresses. Later, at the urgent request of the Belgian minister of the interior, a small bonus was given to each sewing woman for two weeks' work every day for six days.

The work was rapidly extended to all the eleven provinces of Holland. Thirty-four sewing centers were established within a few months. By April 1 more than 1,000 Belgian women and girls, and some men, were producing clothing needed by themselves and by their fellow refugees. Upward of 800 sewing machines were in use.

Lady Johnstone, wife of the British minister, personally visited many of the centers and placed a fund of $2,000 at the disposal of Baron van Tuyll for supplying any little needs of the class. In addition she received $5,000 gifts of scissors from England. The class of 1887 of Harvard college, the personal supervision of the Princess de Ligne, wife of the secretary of the Belgian legation in Holland.

Men Urged to Go Home.

Plans to encourage work for the men in the camps were considered, but it was found that they preferred idleness to their homes, where they could be employed in repairing the ravages of the German hordes and dikes and cultivating their fields. Many of them returned early to start toward rehabilitation. It was believed that the majority of the Belgians in Holland by reason of their pleasant surroundings and the kindness shown them might come should they return home.

Before the war the Belgian relief fund, under way, the Hoekeffler foundation distributed 1,000,000 of unsecured note in Servia.

Servia's Condition Pitiful.

The peasants made their own clothes. The outer garments of the women of the men consist of rough homespun, the wool of which is carded, spun and woven by hand. The skin of the men consists of a sort of leather, and footwear is a sort of leather sandal. Underclothing is usually scanty, made of cheesecloth until quite recently. It is not a manufactured article.

Some of the undergarments for men and women are home made.

One now sees many of people going about covered with nothing but the ragged rags. The Servian reservists are without uniforms and can be distinguished from other peasants only by their weapons or sometimes by a military cap.

If a refugee or soldier who has had neither bath nor change in months, rags of clothes for weeks is brought into a German hospital there will probably be no clean clothes of any kind to issue to him.

At present the country is mobilizing every one capable of military service stored in Macedonia.

Since the second expulsion of the Austro-Hungarian forces many of the Servians have returned to their destroyed homes and are suffering from want of shelter, clothing and food.

Many Austrians of Servian blood are expected to have fled into Servia to escape enforced service in the Austrian army. They are distributed among the communities in the vicinity of Belgrade. The statement was made that 19,000 or 20,000 of these had come to the Valjevo district.

Many loved estate among many thousand Servians, probably 800,000 or more. The epidemic of typhus among people is augmented by the prevalence of epidemic disease, which they are helpless to combat.

Nish, which has a normal population of about 25,000, has had 6,000 cases of typhus attended at about 90,000. It is difficult to imagine the misery among the people. The ravages of starvation and disease were appalling.

There remains in our minds the picture of a long line of Servian refugees drawn face, the skin stretched sharply over the bones, eyes lustrous and unhealthy, clothing weak at the knees and elbows, and the whole body lacking in nourishment. The scraps from cutting were used, and young girls and children pieced quilts from them. This done in one week produced 400 articles of clothing, two-thirds underwear.

SERVIAN SOLDIERS IN RAGS.

The typhus and relapsing fever are the seeds of typhus were widely scattered.

Soldiers are constantly being transported by rail. Where civilians are in the same car they carry away some of the vermin which distribute typhus.

Death from the epidemic became so the frequent as to cause but little commotion.

Typhus gives the total number of typhus cases in Servia at 25,000 to 30,000.

Normally Servia has not more than 1,000 physicians, a very small number for a population of 4,500,000. In the early months of the war the sanitary duty of these physicians died of typhus and during our stay in Servia we were told daily of the striking down of others. Under these conditions the Servian countries have suffered severely. Of the 1,000 physicians in the country was used from the disease when we were in Servia and several more on the way how. Two American doctors from Nish contracted typhus and one died.

Trained nurses, as we know them in the United States, are unknown.

Recognizing the measure not only to relieve people, but for the whole world, the Hoekeffler foundation took the matter up with the American Red Cross. Inquiry brought a cable from Dr. Richard Strong, chairman of the American sanitary commission.

Dr. Strong Sent to Servia.

The American sanitary commission was accordingly constituted and sent out under the direction of Dr. Strong and Dr. Strong, professor of tropical diseases in Harvard Medical school, one of the specialty the foremost plague expert in the United States.

The chief sanitary inspector is Dr. Hans Zinsser, M. D., Harvard University, bacteriologist. Dr. Hans Zinsser, professor of bacteriology, Columbia University; clinical laboratory assistant, Dr. Andrew W. Sellards of Harvard Medical school; clinical assistant, Dr. George C. Shattuck of Harvard Medical school; assistant sanitary inspector, Dr. Francis B. Grinnell of Harvard Medical school, Dr. Nicolls, the French expert on typhus, has been invited to co-operate with the commission.

Charles B. Hoy of Washington, lately connected with the United States immigration service, is executive officer and secretary for the commission.

CHILDREN ENJOY TREASURE HUNT

Scores of Gettysburg Girls and Boys Follow Indian Signs and Clipper Signals to Find Hidden Prizes. Boy in the Woods.

In their first big field day all the Camp Fire Girls and Boy Scouts of Gettysburg started out over nearby country early this afternoon for a treasure hunt in close. Miss Gertrude neer McAllister's Dam with a cooked picnic supper, which the committee will prepare for themselves. Well on to one hundred happy girls and boys are out on the search.

They started from the Boy Scouts' shanty after noon. The trails had been prepared through the country from the Baltimore Pike, Rock Creek, Hall Mill and New York Pike. Indian signs, fifty to one hundred feet apart, were marked with white paint and here and there on the trail clipper letters were hidden. These led to be discovered and used in order to find the next objective point. For two or three hours the children foraged their ways over fields and streams. At the end of each was a letter with the prize number calling the finder to the coveted treasure.

After the hunt a competition is to be held along Rock Creek at a point about two hundred feet below McAllister's Dam. Here the boys of the party will try their skill with creamed beef, French fried potatoes, bacon and eggs, poached eggs, and pancakes. Fruit and other "eatens" will add to the evening meal.

The treasure hunt will be in charge of Scoutmaster Frank H. Keller assisted by the guardians, Miss Verna Schwartz, Miss Ivy Tawney, Miss Ethel Hilliard, Miss Frances Fleming, Miss Nellie Kelly, Miss Katherine Swartz and Miss Ruth Gregg. They will also conduct the exercises of the Camp Fire.

The day will close by 8:30, and the march on Gettysburg will be made by 9:15 this evening.

JOSEPH GOULDEN FALLS OVER DEAD

Congressman J. A. Goulden, one of Adams County's most distinguished sons, dropped dead in the Broad Street Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Philadelphia, Friday afternoon.

Mr. Goulden had been in Maryland on business, and was on the way to his home in Hanover when he was stricken.

Hundreds of persons saw the Congressman drop on the steps, and several people ran to his assistance. A physician, who was in the crowd examined the man and said life was extinct. To-day's news, a coroner's jury was called a patrol wagon and had the body taken to Hahnemann Hospital. There it was said that Mr. Goulden died of heart disease, and the body was taken to the Morgue, where it was identified by means of a card on his traveling bag.

Congressman Goulden was born on the old Goulden farm in Germany township, near Hanover, on August 1, 1844, and entered the navy at the outbreak of the Civil War and there served a very well as promotion was declared. He became connected with educational work and from 1886 to 1888 he was State manager of the Pennsylvania Reformatory. After retiring from this position he removed to New York, where, in 1895, he was appointed national commissioner, serving for five years.

About that time he became connected with the insurance business, in which he remained until his death.

He represented the Twenty-third congressional district, as a Democrat in the Fifty-eighth, Fifty-ninth, Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congress. He was designated and confirmed as a delegate to the Sixty-second, and re-elected to the Sixty-fourth Congress.

He took a deep interest in Grand Army of the Republic affairs and was secretary of the commission that, in recent years, erected a soldiers' and sailors' memorial monument in New York.

Congressman Goulden owned a fine farm near Taneytown and always spent his summers there. He never missed a tri-state county fair held yearly at Taneytown and while this lasted he remained on the grounds.

Mrs. Fannie Gowan, of West High street, is a cousin, and the only surviving relative living in this vicinity. Mr. Goulden, who died one month ago, were William and Mary A. (Wyatt) Goulden.

LUSITANIA IS SUNK BY A GERMAN MINE

Fastest Boat Afloat and Largest in Passenger Service Went Down at 2:55 Friday Afternoon Off the Irish Coast. Passengers Rescued in Small Boats.

At 2:15 o'clock Friday afternoon giant Cunard liner Lusitania was sunk by a German torpedo. Last reports say that all passengers, many of whom are Americans were rescued in small boats.

The catastrophe occurred within sight of land, near the Island of Kensall which lies off the coast of Ireland. The explosion came without warning and the huge ship began to fill with water and rapidly sink. Upon the receipt or distress signals from on board numerous small boats from the Irish coast immediately went to the scene and the sea was sufficiently calm to permit passengers being transferred without much danger.

While a number of smaller vessels have suffered from the effects of mines placed by the Germans this was the first passenger boat of any size to be destroyed for the English.

The Lusitania was a sister ship of the Mauretania which is now fitted out as an auxiliary cruiser. They were the fastest boats afloat and it was thought that they would be safe in passenger service by being able to outdistance any pursuit. The Lusitania has been making regular trips ever since the start of the war between England and Turkey, and with the exception of the Titanic the largest ship ever lost at sea.

HIMES—CANFIELD

New Oxford Man Weds Daughter of Los Angeles Millionaire.

Miss Mabel Canfield, daughter of a wealthy Los Angeles merchant, and Joseph H. Himes, son of George Himes, of New Oxford, were married Thursday at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York. They will visit relatives and friends in New Oxford and Gettysburg before leaving on their honeymoon to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Himes' first wife died several years ago. She was Miss Mabel Carnahan, of Carlton, Ohio. Both she and the present Mrs. Himes were students and friends at National Park Seminary, near Washington. Mr. Himes attended Gettysburg College. He has for several years been in the employ of the Carnahan Tin Plate and Steel Company at Canton.

Miss Longwell's Body to be Placed in Family Lot.

The body of Miss Mattie Longwell, who died at her home in Santa Monica, California, December 19, will be interred in Evergreen Cemetery next Monday. The body is expected to arrive Saturday evening. The funeral procession will leave the Presbyterian church at two o'clock Monday afternoon. There will be no services at the church.

AUTOS RELIEVE NEED OF TROLLEY

Bus Lines out of Gettysburg being well Patronized and Traveling Men Show Appreciation of Service now Much Extended.

With no less than five automobile lines operating on regular schedules daily between Gettysburg and all the important nearby towns, the need for trolley connections is not being at all much desired, it apparently about as well, it is doubtful if the people in this section can now provide better means of access then Gettysburg boasts at present as a motor accommodation.

For many months the daily operation of the bus line between Gettysburg and Columbia, connecting with Chambersburg, has been profitably operated. Not only residents of the western end of the county used the means of getting to Gettysburg but it proved a great boon to traveling salesmen and others who operated in Gettysburg and Franklin County towns. Within the course of this venture, others took up the question of supplementing train services.

Gettysburg now has four auto bus lines between this place and Hanover. Two of these run daily to and from the other from Hanover. On Thursday these motors started a short time ago. The Hanover-Gettysburg line, the other crowded to capacity with travelers, is operated by Emmitsburg and has had "worked" the town and hurried on to the next places. Under the old system they would have had to wait until afternoon. One of these lines operates from New York by Island and Abbottstown; the other goes one time, by way of New Oxford, the next by way of Bonneauville, on a regularly announced schedule. Both lines make a point of meeting all trains and other connections for other towns at Hanover.

The large autobus operating between Gettysburg and Littletown has been receiving considerable patronage of late and persons living along the line of the route, which runs between Gettysburg, Emmitsburg and Thurmont, with railroad connections at Thurmont, Md.

For years drummers have complained of the difficulty in getting out of time here, their routes usually causing them to stay for six or eight hours when their work requires from two to four. Rural people have had difficulty in getting to and from the sections, in some cases, and many have had to train service at all, as for instance those residing along the Emmitsburg and Baltimore pikes.

The patronage accorded would seem to insure the continuance of the service which is bound to become more popular as its convenience becomes more generally recognized.

FOR BLUE LAWS

Petition for General Sunday Closing at Hanover.

A petition is being circulated in Hanover asking the burgess and borough council to enforce the law requiring the closing of places of business on Sunday. The signers are the proprietors of business places, who agree to dispense with the sale of cigars, tobacco, tobacco, ice cream, soudaes, sodas, and soft drinks, at retail, and to refrain from the delivery of ice cream, or order, in quantities, and the serving of lunches is not objected to. Soft drinks, confectionery and pool rooms are also to be closed, and no cigars sold at hotels.

DROPPED ANOTHER

Bucknell Captures Game from Locals in Nixon Field.

Errors at critical times, and timely hitting by Bucknell, resulted in their game Thursday afternoon 8 to 1. Pitcher Lentz for Bucknell also followed only one clean hit, Hoar getting another on an infield grounder. Hoar was on the mound for Gettysburg and was freely hit during the game. Gettysburg had several opportunities to score but was powerless before Brenner when men were on base.

MURICAL PROGRAM

On Sunday evening Grape Vine Union Sunday School, near Gobblersville, will render a musical program consisting of solos, duets, a male quartet, choruses, and instrumental numbers by several village boys. The program will begin at 7:45 and the public is invited.

MAKE CHANGES IN FISH LAWS

Many New Provisions of Interest to Sportsmen of Adams County, Regulations as Proposed in New Legislation.

By a compromise supported by the element which desires to continue Sunday fishing in the boundary waters of the state, the Sunday observance provision was stricken out of the Senate Committee on Fish and Game laws by the new fish code the end provision which imposes a special fee of $25 on those who fish in the interior waters on the Sabbath day.

The new code classifies the game, food and bait fishes of the commonwealth and provides that game fish may be taken only with rod, hook and line, with not more than three hooks to each line during the open season. Bait fish may be taken at any time with hook and line, or with minnow traps or dip nets not over three feet square, and food fish may be taken with hook and line and outline at any time of the year. All other methods of taking fish from the public waters are forbidden.

The open season is left as it is but the size limit is abolished and a creel limit of 60 is substituted, but no change made illegal to return to the water any trout that has been hooked.

The new law fixes the game fish in from June 15 to December 31, inclusive.

A trout stream is defined as one in which trout are commonly fished for, and each county is given the authority or whether native to such stream.

The commissioners of fisheries is given power to appoint 30 wardens at salaries of $80 a month and to appoint deputies or special fish wardens on request of fish protective associations or individuals and to revoke their warrants, who shall serve without compensation unless detailed in writing to specific duties, when a per diem allowance may be provided. The terms of all such appointees shall run for four years each year.

Fishing cars are permitted from June 30 to December 1 for the capture of carp, suckers, mullet and eels, only, but they must be anchored at both ends, sunk to the bottom, baited with corn only, no person being permitted to use more than three outlines with a total of 100 hooks. All outlines must be tended at least once every 24 hours of 5 o'clock p. m. and 7 o'clock a. m. If the owners fail to comply with their operation, a metallic tag bearing his name and address must be attached to each line.

No outlines are permitted in trout streams at any time.

York Springs Purchases Chemical Fire Engine.

The town council of York Springs has decided to purchase a chemical engine at a cost of $185. A representative of the engine company was in the town and gave a satisfactory demonstration of the machine. A large bonfire was built at the rear of Earl Miller's stable and after gaining good headway was extinguished in a few moments.

Drink Water and Live a Century.

A Rumanian scientist claims that anyone can live to be one hundred years old, barring accidents, if he drinks enough water. He declares he has discovered that old age is due to a deficiency in the amount of water in the system and that Father Time may be kept back by systematic water drinking during middle age.

22 HAVE SMALL POX

Tramp, Who Continued on Way, Thought to Have Spread Disease.

That the twenty-two cases of smallpox in and near Hagerstown were started by a tramp who visited that city in the opinion of some Hagerstown physicians. It is reported that a man, presumably a tramp, passed through Funkstown, Md., afflicted with eruptions which appeared to be smallpox. He stopped a resident of the town, who, seeing his condition, told him he had smallpox, and that he had better go back to Hagerstown and get in touch with the authorities there. He continued his journey. To following replied he would do nothing of the kind, and that he intended going to Sparrows' Point, and then renting or on down the Boonsboro pike.

GETTYSBURG ON TEN REEL FILM

Officials of Lincoln Highway Association in Town, Will Place Town and Battlefield on Big Movie Picture. Guarantee $150.

Gettysburg has been selected as one of the twelve Pennsylvania towns, and one of the sixty five towns in the United States, to appear on the ten reel motion picture film which will show the Lincoln Highway and all its boasties. H. C. Osterman, official photographer, was in Gettysburg, and E. E. Spencer, the official photographer, were in the town Thursday to make arrangements for taking the pictures about May 20.

They are now on their way to New York from Indianapolis and will start on the return from New York about May 10, being given their formal send-off by Governor Willson and Mayor Mitchell. Four cars will compose the party at that time, and pictures of all the important places along the line of the coast to coast highway will be taken.

It has been determined definitely to include the Gettysburg battlefield and the prize monumenta in the big film which will first be shown at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. It was for the purpose of getting local people interested in showing the town itself that the officials of the association were here Thursday and they were successful in their efforts.

The plan is that a delegation of citizens shall meet the official party May 20 at the Maryland-Pennsylvania limits, escort them to the center of town where the party will be photographed and all the principal buildings display flags and bands commence, and the Lincoln Highway. A turn-out of local veterans is suggested, with a company of bonafide soldiers and an automobile demonstration, in order to show how the town is equipped to care for tourists.

In order to meet the expense of taking and placing these pictures in the film, a fund was asked. S. S. Neely, Esq., local consul of the Lincoln Highway Association, became sponsor for raising this amount among Gettysburg people.

The project further provides that the films shall later be sent here and shown in one of the local picture houses at an admission of not less than twenty five cents which would afford sufficient revenue to pay the cost of "putting Gettysburg on the map" and refund to business people the guarantee provided. The ten or twelve reels will show every portion of interest on the 3,000 miles of Lincoln Highway, together with the demonstrations now being arranged at other towns along the route.

Among the nearby communities place, when he was up the hill, it will appear in the film are Chambersburg, the Ford, and Carlisle.

Mr. Osterman and Mr. Spencer are traveling in a white Stutz car, with bright red seat covers and the Lincoln Highway emblem freely shown. They stopped at the Eagle Hotel while here.

Volume 8 | Gettysburg, Pa., Saturday, May 18th, 1918. | No. 76.

WILL RETURN TO MAKE NEW START

Bob White will be Released upon Completion of his First Year in State Institution. Expects to Come Back here.

"Bob" White is coming back to Gettysburg. Authorities at the Eastern Penitentiary state that he will be placed on parole at the end of the first year of his term which expires on May 19th, and that he will then be allowed his freedom subject to the usual requirements of the indeterminate sentence law. White, as will be recalled, created a sensation here last year when he made way with the automobile of C. S. Renner, his friend and benefactor, sold the machine in Philadelphia, and was caught in Chicago some time later.

He also admitted the theft of $25 worth of tools from Mr. Renner, and a $10 watch from Mrs. Hauer, with whom he boarded.

When White was taken to the penitentiary he stated that he would devote half of his earnings there toward paying back Mr. Renner for the theft. He also stated that, upon the completion of his sentence, he would come back to Gettysburg, show that he was sincere in his religious profession of a year ago, and make good in every sense of the term. That his unsuspected purpose twelve months ago is still his intention is evident by the letters which Mr. Renner has recently received from him.

During all the time he has been in the penitentiary White has been in constant correspondence with Mr. Renner and the local manufacturer will do all in his power to give the boy another chance to show his worth. Mr. Renner recently had a conversation with Mr. McKenty and made all the necessary arrangements for White's return here. It is the plan to give him work in the automobile business at which he is proficient.

At Philadelphia White proved a model prisoner and he had personal charge of Mr. Penrose's own automobile. He was constantly employed at the garage of the institution and proved a model as well as a pleasant prisoner. The warden speaks highly of his behavior and will do his share toward giving White another chance.

The young man still has friends in Gettysburg who trust that the people of the town will not do anything to make his return unpleasant, but that they will co-operate in giving the attractive young Englishman a fresh start.

CARS COLLIDE

Ford Badly Damaged when Heavier Car Hits it.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Trostle, and little son, of Washington township, had a narrow escape from being killed in an automobile accident near Bendersville. Mr. Trostle was in his Ford car and, as he got to the lane leading to the Edward Harman farm, in touring car came into the road and sideswiped Mr. Trostle car, pushing it up tight against the bank and painfully injuring Mrs. Trostle. The front axle and both wheels on the right side were broken and the radius rod was bent.

The touring car was driven by Mr. Hartman's 15-year-old son who was making his first trip in the machine. A high bench hides the approach to the highway to anyone coming out of the lane.

WILL NOT PAROLE

Firemen will not appear in Line on May 30.

Owing to the fact that so many of their members belong to other organizations which will be in line, the Gettysburg Fire Company on Wednesday evening decided to decline the invitation to participate in the Memorial Day parade. The company will sell miniature flags on the day to raise funds. The money used in other years. The home talent show has again been indefinitely postponed. The relief fund was reported to contain $1247, while the general fund has a balance of $194.46.

SECURE BETTER MAIL FACILITIES

Delay One Carrier Long Enough to Get City Mail, and Two Towns in the Eastern End of the County Have Welcome Relief.

Following a request from Bishop J. W. Shanahan, of the Harrisburg diocese of the Catholic church, Congressman C. William Beales has prevailed on the postoffice department to provide a more efficient mail service for a section of Adams County including Abbottstown and East Berlin.

The bishop wrote to the congressman that a letter posted in Harrisburg on Friday afternoon did not reach the Pandaise protectory and agricultural school of the church near Abbottstown until the following Monday morning. Sunday newspapers mailed in Philadelphia early Sunday morning were not delivered at the protectory until the following Monday.

It was suggested that as all the mails that could reasonably is expected of reaching Harrisburg by 8:30 a. m., and reached Gettysburg in time to have a good connection with the mail wagon left Hanover at 7:15, a delay in the departure of the carrier until 8:45 would enable him to secure this mail and remedy the trouble.

The change has been made much as suggested. The carrier will in the future not leave Hanover until receipt of mail at 8:38, but not later than 8:45, and will arrive here in 50 minutes. Instruction has been issued to have a post-office established at Abbottstown and East Berlin made up for this train, to be received by the carrier at Hanover.

DREARY OUTLOOK

Few Road Shows will be Here Next Season.

Unless the theatrical managers can secure a change of ruling from the Inter-State Commerce Commission, Gettysburg together with thousands of other one night stand towns will have to look for entertainment from the road shows next season, because of the increased fare that went into effect May 1.

Because of the bust Al G. Fields has closed his tent with the minstrel show and Gus Hill is another manager who finds he cannot stand the increased railroad rates, and on May 1 Mr. Hill declares he will pass.

Mr. Hill declares that he will permanently retire all of his road shows if the increased rates are allowed to stand by the Inter-State Commerce Commission. The effects of the "Mutt and Jeff in Mexico" companies, with thirty people each; three "Bringing Up Fathers" companies, with twenty people each, and two "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" companies, with twenty people each, employing in all three hundred and fifty people, and using ten sixty-foot baggage cars.

MAKE ASSIGNMENT

Three Properties Involved in Action Filed Monday.

John F. Walter and Blanche N. Walter, his wife, have made a voluntary assignment of all his property in trust for his creditors to C. S. Williams, Esq. This conveys all the personal property and real estate of the assignee. The latter consists of the "Gettysburg Hotel," on Baltimore street; "Walter's Theater" and the "Lincoln Way Inn," on York street.

The assignment will affect the liens against the property of the assignee. Henderson Lyon holds the former as security and has a lease on the hotel property.

The judgments and mortgages entered against the real estate aggregate more than $24,000, and in addition there are a number of outside or common claims.

OPERATION

Station Agent Treated here by Physicians. Returns Home.

T. F. Wright, agent for the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad at Arapers, was operated upon Wednesday afternoon by Dr. J. Ross Kerr, Jr., and Dr. J. R. Dickson for a varicose vein condition back of the knee. Mr. Wright returned home to-day.

WILL OBSERVE GOOD ROADS DAY

Supervisors of Adams County Urged to Issue Call for May 29, when Residents of Every Section of the State will Turn out.

The Supervisors' Association of Adams County, at the request of their president, C. J. Deardorff, will issue a general call to the people of the boroughs and townships to turn out in force on May 29 in the observance of Pennsylvania's first Good Roads Day. Everybody who can work will be asked to donate their daily hours' labor on that day and this county, with the others in the State, will do all that can, possibly be accomplished for the highways of the various districts.

State Highway Commissioner Cunningham has asked every citizen to give heed to the proclamation issued by Governor Brumbaugh and every member of the State Highway Department is pledged to assist in every manner possible in the observance.

Under the organization now planned the supervisors of each township in Adams County will lay out the plans for the work in their individual districts. The men in each township will require different treatment from the roads in others, and general plans will be issued by the county board, outlined, so that when the farmers meet on the roads on the day first mentioned, there will be no question about what each one is to do.

It has been suggested that while this is going on in the rural districts the people of the towns may organize to fix their streets on the same day. Properly carried out by the organization, great things could be accomplished on borough roads.

The Inter-State Commerce Township in the county has at least one good road which will be improved. four. If there is sufficient wet weather before May 29th, these appliances could be used to determine for all whether wet or dry, there will be enough rain to test the efficiency of roads, male highways and lanes, may be expected to present a scene of great activity if the call issued to the many members of the supervisors' association, and through them to the hundreds of residents, is heeded.

Assistance will be asked by the State Highway Department to cooperate are the following:

Automobile Dealers and Teachers. The influence wielded by these two classes of citizens is sufficient to make their aid most desirable.

Chamber of Commerce. Officers of churches in the county should be urged to use their influence to the utmost to promote the day.

Medical Associations. Whether as individuals or as associations, the doctors in any community exercise great influence over those in their charge and it is expected that the committee visited, the peasants "lived like kings," but that the Belgian soldiers were so good, he felt ashamed of Pennsylvania.

A box luncheon, in the Home of the Hanover League, was the social feature of the afternoon.

The afternoon session opened with a devotional service, a solo by a young lady, "Peace" was the keynote of the speakers of the session.

Mrs. Emma Sample, president of the State Federation, in her fine address, dwelt on the part women in war and said that "Woman, to conquer the Hun, must be willing to suffer that she cannot escape in war, should be equipped with the bullet."

The conference was held in the Methodist church.

MINISTERS ELECT

Conference Chooses Heads for Next Twelve Months.

Officers elected by the Adams County Lutheran Conference at Wrightsville on Tuesday were: president, Rev. W. K. Fisch, Fairfield; vice president, Rev. C. F. Fleto, Biglerville; secretary, Rev. F. K. Stenzel, Abbottstown; treasurer, Rev. E. Stockslager, Mt. Joy Church. St. James Evangelical Lutheran church at Arendtsville has been selected as host of the conference. It is expected that the next session will be held either at this church or at Upper Bermudian.

PEACE PRAYER IN LOCAL CHURCHES

Various Catholic Parishes in Adams County will Observe Request of the Pope that Special Prayer be said at Services.

In the Catholic churches of Gettysburg and the various county towns and rural communities, the following prayer for peace, decreed by Pope Benedict XV will be said at the sacred functions during the month of May:

"Dismayed by the horrors of a war which is bringing ruin to peaceful nations, we turn, O Jesus, to Thy most loving heart as to our last hope. O God of Mercy with tears we implore Thee to end this fearful scourge! O Virgin of Peace, we humbly implore the peace for which we long! From Thy sacred heart Thou didst shed tears over the world divine charity, so that the discord might end and love alone might reign among men. Incline Thy life on earth Thy heart beat with tender compassion for the sorrows of misery; in like manner Thou didst hasten to the bereaved, with bloodshed and with slaughter, once more may Thy divine heart be moved with pity.

"Pity for countless mothers in anguish for the loss of their sons, pity the numberless families now bereaved of their dearest by the struggle, over which broods such havoc and disaster! Do Thou inspire rulers and people with counsels of meekness! Do Thou heal the discord that tears the nations asunder! Do Thou put an end to the bitterness which has divided them! Do Thou bring them back united together once more in loving harmony! And as once before to the cry of the Apostle: 'We perish,' Thou didst answer with power and calm the angry waves, so now deign to hear our truthful prayer, and give back to the world the peace it longs for.

"And do Thou, O Most Holy Virgin, Queen of Peace, obtain for us from Thy Son, our Redeemer, that He may have mercy on us and forgive us. Amen."

WERE REPRESENTED

County Women Attended Recent Meeting in Harrisburg.

The Conference of the Central District of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, held in Hanover, which attended Adams County were represented by women from all the nearby towns.

After a business session in the morning and officers' reports, Mrs. Rachel Foulke, wife of Harrisburg's mayor, spoke on "Political Equality for Women." A number of Civic Problems were taken up, Mrs. Florence Kelley made an address on the Housing Problem in Pennsylvania; Dr. A. R. Pancoast, of York, Mr. Farquhar, who has studied housing conditions abroad, made comparisons, saying that in Germany, as Belgium.

HEAVY FINES FOR ILLEGAL FISHING

Parents Pay over One Hundred Dollars for Boys' Sport. New Plan Retaliation on Gettysburg Fishermen whom they Blame.

After paying fines and costs aggregating $122.50 for violations of the fish and game laws in this county, J. J. Redding and J. C. Redding, fathers of the young men caught by Officer Emmons on Tuesday evening, on Thursday took retaliatory measures on the sportsmen of Gettysburg, whom they blame for the arrest, and declared that they would have arrested for trespassing any one caught fishing on their properties.

The precise of signing along March Creek is said to be more prevalent now than for many years and local sportsmen, determined to break up the operations, secured the services of Mr. Emmons on Tuesday night. The officer was also acting under instructions from the State authorities.

Mr. Emmons arrived on the scene about eight o'clock and patrolled the creek for about two hours. Torches are said to have been used by the poachers and these led to their arrest, and when they came out in the vicinity of the Gettysburg water works Mr. Emmons approached them and searched them for bass, with the result that they had a total of 100 fish in their baskets.

The fun of the boys cost J. C. Redding $75.50, and J. J. Redding $46.00. The fines paid to Squire Hill were: each of the larger part of the bill. J. J. Redding's account was made up as follows: two bass at $10.00 each; 81 bass at $100.00; costs, $15.50. J. C. Redding's bill was three jigging charges at $20.00 each; and costs, $13.50.

The fines in the cases go to the State, being paid to Mr. Hill as agent and then through the usual channels to the State Fisheries Commission who use the funds for the propagation of game fish.

While admitting the charges, the young men claimed in extenuation of their offenses that they believed the jigging season was in force, and that they did not know they were violating this portion of the laws. Regarding the bass, they claimed that at night they could not tell what kind of fish they were spearing and that the taking of the game fish was not their intention. They also say, that it was their first time out, at that heavy penalty seems considerably severe.

No little feeling has been stirred up in the country bordering March Creek, as the result of the arrests, and Officer Mr. Emmons at the instigation of local sportsmen, it is reported apparently do not find any fault with the prosecutions, provided they are widespread in their choice. Some declare that the taking of bass and jigging are not confined to young people but that it is a general practice among some residents of the county, and the singling out of the Redding boys and the fines imposed upon them is considered unfair and unjust.

In reply to this Mr. Emmons states that he has been trying to secure evidence on others and that he will make further arrests as soon as he can catch the offenders at work.

AFTER 31 YEARS

Returns to Adams County to Visit Relatives here.

Henry Peterman, of Astoria, Illinois, is visiting relatives and friends in and about New Oxford. Thirty one years ago he left this county to take up his residence in the Illinois town and he has lived there ever since, this being his first visit back during that time. He is a carpenter by trade and states that he is very fond of living in the Middle West, but will return to Astoria in about a week.

DONATE MACHINES FOR PARADE USE

Gettysburg Automobile Owners will Give their Cars to Take Veterans to and from National Cemetery on Memorial Day.

In response to a request issued through The News, thirteen automobile owners have consented to donate the use of their cars for the veterans' section of the parade on Memorial Day. A number of other cars will be required to accommodate all and those who care to contribute to the success of the day are asked to notify this office at once.

The following have responded to the call and will place their automobiles at the disposal of the veterans, J. L. Dutt, C. W. Beales, Donald F. McPherson, John D. Keith, William H. Johns, Charles A. Bream, Peter M. Blocher, J. Frank Hartman, W. F. Gilliland, T. J. Winebrenner, J. Price Oyler, John D. Slagle, and Jennie M. Menger.

Many others signified their desire to co-operate in the plan but owing to previously made arrangements to spend the day out of town, or because of press of business on Memorial Day, they were unable to offer the use of their cars. Six or eight more cars will be required and it is asked that a response be made to this second call shall be made so that there need be no inconvenience at the last moment.

The cars will not be required for a long period on Memorial Day. They will be expected to be in position at the Post Room at 1:15 in the afternoon, so as to take the veterans to the cemetery, and back again after the ceremonies, which at the most will not likely be more than 2:30 or 3:00 o'clock.

DISTRICT CONVENTION

Sunday School Workers Plan One Day Convention.

The annual convention of the Third District of the Adams County Sabbath School Association will be held in Mt. Joy church on Sunday. The department superintendents are, Home, Addison Hartman; missionary, Mrs. Charles Stavely; secretary, Mrs. I. M. Lau; O. A. B. C., D. C. Benedict; teacher training, Miss Sarah; missionary, Miss Jessie Slaughter; temperance, Miss Elsa Blocher.

BADLY HURT

Charles Clapaddle, living along the Baltimore Pike, near town, sustained a dislocated shoulder, a broken collar bone, and severe bruises over his body, Tuesday afternoon when a horse he was riding became frightened and bolted away.

Mr. Bushman and Mr. Clapaddle were in the buggy at the time and the horse became unmanageable when it took fright at the exhaust from an automobile engine near the road. The latter, seeing what was about to happen, tried to plunge, and, fearing that it would run into some object, Mr. Clapaddle jumped, falling heavily on his shoulder and receiving the injuries mentioned. Mr. Bushman escaped unhurt and the horse was caught without any further damage having been done.

Mr. Clapaddle is getting along nicely under the care of a local physician and his early recovery is anticipated.

SERIOUS MISHAPS BEFALL CITIZENS

Broken Leg, Dislocated Bones, and Other Accidents Suffered by Town and County People. Child Gets Head Caught in Grindstone.

John Flickinger, farmer at the Hoffman Orphanage, sustained a severe and painful injury Monday afternoon when a young colt fell on him. The earn had both bones of one leg, between the ankle and the knee, broken, the bones splintered and portions protruded through the flesh. Mr. Flickinger was trimming the feet of the colt when the animal suddenly threw itself and fell on him. Dr. H. M. Hartman was summoned and attended the removal of the patient to the Kay-stone Hospital at Harrisburg, and this was at once performed.

Miss Nettie Groner, the ten year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Groner, of East Middle street, tripped and fell over a wire while playing at her home Monday afternoon and dislocated her arm. A physician was called and rendered the necessary surgical attention.

Samuel Scott, an employe of the Gettysburg Ice and Storage Company, received severe injury to one leg on Tuesday morning at the Western Maryland freight depot while loading ice cream tubs from a team to a car. One of the tubs was overturned and to drop against the hind legs of the horse and when the animal plunged forward Scott was thrown from the wagon. He received the attention of a physician and will be confined to his home for some time.

When little Edith Bark, the eighteen months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bark, residing on the Hartzell farm west of town, quietly her hand caught in the wheel of a grindstone on Monday, the ends of two fingers were badly mashed. The lot had been playing about the place when the accident happened. A local physician is attending her.

LONG TRIP

Thirty Five Mile Walk for Town Boy Scouts.

Seven Gettysburg Scouts with their Scoutmaster, Clarence Miller, took a thirty five mile hike on Saturday, going to Dodsville by way of New Chester, walking five miles up the creek, and then returning home by way of New Oxford. The Scouts included Paul McClean, Leslie Peiserkorv, Donald Swope, Robert Orner, Clarence Sheely, Edwin Thomas, and Jack Ogle. Swimming, boating and games occupied the day while the boys also looked about in the hope of finding an available camp site for a camp this summer. The youngsters did not put away from New Oxford until sight o'clock in the evening and were thoroughly tired out upon their arrival in Gettysburg.

FRATERNITY PARTY

Supper and Dancing at Resort on the Mountain.

The Phi Kappa Psi fraternity of college have issued invitations to an affair which they will give at Cashdollar on Friday evening at Chicken and waffle supper and dancing program will precede dancing at the park. About forty young people expect to enjoy the meeting.

MORE EXCURSIONS

Specials to be of Usual Number on Memorial Day.

Notification of additional excursions for May 31st have been received at the local office of the Western Maryland and the usual number of specials from this part of Pennsylvania and from Maryland will be run by that road.

HAD OPERATION

Recovering after Treatment in the York Hospital

Mrs. W. H. Evans, of South Wash. Ington street, is recovering from an operation which she underwent at the York hospital Tuesday for the removal of a tumor. The operation was performed by Doctors King and Baker. Mr. Evans returned home Friday evening from York where he spent the past few days with his wife.

MAKE DISTRIBUTION

Water Company will Pay its Usual Semi-Annual Dividend.

At a meeting of the directors of the Gettysburg Water Company on Saturday a dividend of sixty cents a share was declared payable May 15th.

POPULAR MECHANICS

Horsepower of a Rainfall.

Few people realize the energy in a fall of rain. On the evening of Oct. 31, 1914, there fell in Kansas City, Mo., in two hours 1.29 inches of rain. Assuming that this rain covered an area of one square mile, or sixteen square miles, and that it fell from an altitude of 10,000 feet, the energy represented was about 1,000,000 horsepower hours. Were this converted into electrical energy without loss it would be worth enough to supply 4,700,000 kilowatt hours, at 10 cents per kilowatt hour this energy would cost $470,000.—Scientific American.

To Test Pocket Watches.

We now have in this country an opportunity to secure at small expense of that commodity sometimes most difficult to obtain, "time in money," says the Scientific American. The bureau of standards, official measure of the United States, undertakes for a trifle to regulate pocket watches and to report on and certify to its perfect motion. The most delicate test, that in which the watch is placed in the position of the watch for fifty-four hours, is made for $2, and other tests in positions not so different proportionately.

Defeating Auto Headlights.

The use of the "dim" headlight in automobile driving at night is that which is thrown on the road. Sufficient light may be obtained by painting the lower half of the lens of the ordinary headlight so as the rays that strike the upper part will not project forward. Instead of the lighting, says Automobile Investor, a simple screen may be placed in the headlight glare is to direct the light downward. The screen is placed at such points as that the principal rays will be thrown upon the street fifty feet ahead of the car.

Testing the Compressors.

When a cylinder fails to hold compression in the air brake system, whether leakage is taking place past the piston or past the valve is determined not by the rays that strike the upper part of the glass but by the position of the lighting, says Automobile Investor. A simple arrangement for testing the locomotive is to direct the light downward. The compressor may be examined when the engine is pulled over a terminal and it will be found that at each compression of the piston the light from part of the interior pipe if the leak is past the piston, but if the valve is the one making this test when the engine is cold.

Measuring Wire Wound on a Spool.

When winding enamel spools on a lathe the exact length of wire wound can be roughly determined by means of the device shown in The Electrician, says Popular Mechanics.

The large end face which the wire is obtained is conveniently placed on a base mounted on the lathe bed and in line with the spool which is to be wound. Against the face when, the exact diameter of which is known, is placed a graduated scale which may be read so it may freely revolve.

DEVICE FOR MEASURING WIRE.

number of the wound spool could be obtained automatically by a revolution counter.

When using the device the wire from the spool to be wound is passed over it to secure the necessary grip to prevent slipping between the face and the scale spool. The exact diameter of the liber being known the number of revolutions indicated, the true length of the wire found on the spool can be easily determined by the following formula: Length of wire on spool equals circumference of fiber in feet times number of revolutions of fiber.

Lubricating Spring Leaves.

A new device for the introduction of the leaves of automobile springs has been brought out by a New York Scientific American. The device is essentially a hypodermic syringe of plain design and on each side of the spring. Each plug is screwed into the spring and by each stroke the latter pressed against the leaves, thus spring leaves and feeding the oil between.

An Aid to Starting.

"Take a cold bath in the with a little gasoline in it and place it for a few minutes in it a man's hands, then give him a few drops of gasoline and rub him in the temperature and inject into the eye." The method is given by a writer in a medical journal, who says he used it "many times with success in three cases of snow-blindness."

Care of the Magneto.

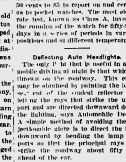
Too much care cannot be taken in oiling or will interfere with current delivery to the battery. A convenient method can be tested with a six volt battery current. It may have not. The engine "running smooth" mechanic should not attempt to locate a magneto or generator.—Automobile Dealer.

Removing Pencil Marks.

Broadcrumbs thoroughly rubbed over a pencil drawing will remove most of the dirt and without disturbing the drawing.

SNAPSHOTS AT NOTABLE PERSONS

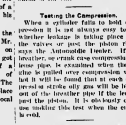
Prince Joachim, Youngest Son of Kaiser Wilhelm.



The return of Prince Joachim, Emperor William's youngest son, to service duty on the fighting line, is one of the interesting incidents of the present European war. The prince is one of the most popular officers of the German army and is beloved of the soldiers in the trenches. Last September Prince Joachim was severely wounded in the fighting in Lorrer, having received a piece of shrapnel in his thigh while on the firing line.

Prince Joachim in was sent to the western battle front, serving under General von Heidkamp with the rank of lieutenant. Illustrative of the prince's popularity with the soldiers is he told: One night while serving as officer of the day he visited the trenches with dispatches entrusted into his care. Being stopped by the sentry he explained his mission and stated that it was not necessary to tell the officer of the guard. The sentry told his officer were insistent that the officer be called. Soon the prince appeared and was allowed to proceed. It is believed that the episode shows the fidelity of the soldiers to their superiors.

Prince Joachim is the son of Emperor William and Princess Victoria Louise and is the youngest child of the family. He was born June 17, 1890, and is therefore twenty-four years old. He is a bachelor.



Expert in Gun Making.

Rear Admiral Frank E. Beatty, commandant of the Norfolk navy yard, who took charge of the interment proceedings of the German commander-destroyer Prinz Eitel Friedrich, will be responsible for the safe keeping of the ship.

It is not probable that any dismantling of the ship will be regarded as necessary beyond the removal of the breech blocks of her guns and the making of the diamond in order that Jos Laughlin may have his souvenir at an early next week, as he wants to. Just as soon as the commandant's pin gallon closes a large force of men will be put to work to tear down the building, while another force will be engaged on the improvements at the baseball park. Quite a bit of the advertising space on the fences has been sold, only a few feet are left on the outside, while about half of the inside has been contracted for. Martinsburg will also have the right to the ability of the fair sex to help win games with their rooting, but as a special inducement to draw them to the games, the base ball club has decided to admit the ladies to games free of charge. At the meeting last night it was also decided to make that admission for men to the stand 50 cents. This is the first change would be made for ladies. The rooting of the Martinsburg girls has always been a strong factor in the game and it is felt that they should be shown some appreciation. The meeting will continue the good work. Admission to the grounds will be 25 cents to everybody.

The signed contract of Earl Bensell, the wonder pitcher, who won 20 out of 23 games in which he participated for Dover, Delaware, last season, was received by Manager Lobaugh Saturday. Manager Morrison is confident that Bensell will bring with him form the nucleus of one of the strongest round staffs in the circuit. Crossley, who was with Dover last season, has also been signed with the Hustlers. Pitcher Lobaugh has been in touch with Jack Dunn and his Baltimore Orioles. The signatures of the following players are on the Saturday-Peck, a pitcher, hailing from Baltimore; Ed Hoffman, a catcher, formerly on the Lancaster aggregation and Bruce Hoobler, formerly of Hagerstown.

George J. Stroh, of Syracuse, N. Y., arrived in Gettysburg Saturday afternoon and was met at the station by Jacob Spangler, one of the local celebrities. Mr. Stroh said that all the boys signed for the club are good plain living, decent citizens who do not add drinking or carousing will not be allowed to play with the team. Lobaugh he said: "I want to give the people of Chambersburg a team to be proud of and not off the field. All the members of the players being such as to bring honor to both city and team." Manager Stroh was educated at Fairfield Military Academy, a preparatory school for West Point, graduating 1902 to 1906 he played with Montreal in the International League. He afterwards went to the New York State League and in 1909 to Rochester. He was then sold to Elmira and about the middle of that season he broke his thumb and was sold to Harrisburg. He played there in 1910, 1911 and 1913. In 1914 he managed the Johnsonburg club, which ended second in its league.

COMING HERE

Harrisburg Notes Autos from Many States Coming to Gettysburg.

Says the Harrisburg Telegraph: "The automobile tourists who will appears to be no. in front of hotels this morning indicate that there are cars bearing New York, Virginia, Iowa, Illinois, Maryland and Pennsylvania Hennas. Most of the parties were on their way to Gettysburg."

MORE OILING

York Street Gets Attention at Hands of Borough.

The highway force started Monday morning to place oil on the second square of York street. An improved machine installed by Allen B. Plank is aiding materially in doing the work promptly and effectually.

UNCLAIMED MAIL

Awaiting Call at the Gettysburg Post Office.

Letters for the following remain unclaimed in the Gettysburg post office: John Devlin, Herbert Gross, Earl M. Bains, G. W. Trewey.

PALMS FOR THE INFANT LEAGUE

Hagerstown would Use Tabernacle Timber for Ball Field. Martinsburg to Encourage Rooting by Female Fans. Other Sidelights.

A contract has under consideration at Hagerstown by the base ball managers for the lumber used in the Baldwell tabernacle. They claim that they could use it nicely at their new park. All preliminary work will be finished this week and the laying of the grounds and the making of the diamond in order that Jos Laughlin may have his souvenir at an early next week, as he wants to. Just as soon as the commandant's pin gallon closes a large force of men will be put to work to tear down the building, while another force will be engaged on the improvements at the baseball park. $10,000 MAN HEAD OF HOLDUP GANG

White's Dramatic Confession of Crime Stirs Court.

LIVED HYDE AND JEKYLL LIFE

Was Feasted While Hostage by Day and All Unknown to Wife, Was Remorse Faithful. Was Associate of Gunmen and Procurator of Vile Dens at Night.

No more dramatic scene has ever been witnessed in a criminal court than that which took place in Brooklyn on recent days when Phillip T. White, a $10,000 a year cash customer, tore off his financial emblems and confessed that he was the leader of a band of holdup bandits who robbed scores of the frequenters of the vilest dens in East Baltimore Tenderloin.

Beside White sat his faithful wife, who had stood by him through the days of his trial and who had given birth to her husband's child in the jail. Until he had confessed to her that he had lacerated skin shown in the spotlight, a spectacle that was new to the bar. There was hardly a dry eye in the room.

White was charged with being one of a band of twelve bandits who were in the habit of robbing the gamblers and degenerates who frequented the dives of East Baltimore. Each time a hold-up was pulled off the police were notified by the victim and immediately surrounded by the police. Each time the bandits escaped. Somehow they always knew when the police were coming. Each time the robbery victims was with him at dinner, theater, club, or Cervesa! His victory was $10,000 a year.

Two Men Deep Enough.

While the manner arranged with the court for him to make his confession, White, after a night of tossing, sent out millions in front of him. He gave his wife, Mrs. Ethel White, a kiss, his wife and then, steeling himself for the ordeal, began to tell his story with emotion.

"I want, I wish to confess my guilt and my shame before your court and before my wife," he said. "I have been deep of my employers and the love of my wife, and the confidence of my friends, by my reckless, my unscrupulous, my dissipated life. I know I was trapped and before I fell, I was trapped, but I am just sorry at this time.

"But one thing I wish to ask here is that the good Lord will give me the strength to tell the story of my shame which you will impose and that I may receive forgiveness for my sins, and very dollar I have taken and for every out of misery which I have caused by my recklessness. And I also want to pay back to the state all that I have received.

"I wish to be spared to help J. Edward Duffy, assistant state's attorney, but his position through helping me, and I want to help Arthur Brown, who also lost his position, although I do not know why.

"This is the bitter cup that the Lord has seen fit to give me. I have prayed to the Lord, and he has pulled me. I am going to confess. That is all."

As in the custom, several bailiffs were sworn in to the box.

"Stand back, officers!" commanded Deputy Attorney General Duffy as he rose to cross-examine.

Wife Puts Hand in His.

Mrs. White, pallid as he, but trembling less, stepped down from the prisoner's side, slipped her arm through his and put her hand in his own. White bent over her and whispered.

"Helen, I'm guilty of the charges, but I'll ask you to make a clean breast of it."

"I see you wore the button of the Mystic Shrine," said Justice Andrus, himself a member of the order.

White bowed, and his hand went to the lapel of his coat.

"I can't wear this any longer; I have disgraced it. I only wore it for the Masonic emblem, for I am not fit to wear it."

In the tense silence of the court only the voice of the prisoner could be heard.

"I have been impressed with the subtlety and frankness of this man," said the justice. "Before sentence I will ask counsel if they would like to make an investigation. I will hold the case on record and also to hear from his friends, but I will postpone sentence."

White a member of an excellent Virginia family, has come to the city and won a high reputation among those with whom he lived and worked by day. But for his own confession of his double life, no one would have suspected that he and Jekyll existence would not have been realized by his friends.

GERMANY RESUMES RACING.

Yan Day Meet For $62,500 to Be Held at Berlin.

At a meeting, of the Union club in Berlin, the controlling body for horse racing in Germany, the vice president announced that permission might be received to reopen the race tracks, but without the operation of betting machines.

The first meet will begin at Hoppegarten, near Berlin, May 24, and continue ten days. Seven races will be run each day. The purses will amount to $62,500.

DRANK GLASS OF VANILLA EXTRACT

County Farmer Mistakes it for Pain Chaser. Physician Summoned and Serious Results are Prevented. Now on Way to Recovery.

When he drank half a glass of extract of vanilla in mistake for medicine, Joseph Hankish, Heinz along the Bonneauville Road several miles from Gettysburg, became deathly sick and required the services of a physician to prevent serious results. The vanilla was taken Saturday afternoon and word on Monday was to the effect that he was still resting along all right and that serious consequences had been averted.

McCormick is a resident of Franklin County but since last September had been employed by John Zimmerman at whose home the event of Saturday took place. The man was subject to attacks of cramp and found relief in a patent medicine known as "Pain Chaser." On Saturday, when he again suffered one of these attacks he started at once for the pantry in which the medicine was kept, along with bottles of other sorts.

In his hurry to get the stuff he took the wrong bottle, poured out not less than half a dose, and swallowed its hurriedly. In a moment he realized his mistake and at once became very ill. A Gettysburg physician was summoned and by the use of emetics brought the unfortunate to his senses all right and avoided any serious consequences.

McCormick is 35 years of age and has several children. He has been in business during his eight months' residence here.

TOOK THEM HOTH

Base Ball and Track Teams were Both Successful.

Gettysburg registered two victories Saturday when the base ball team won from Johns Hopkins at Baltimore by a 6 to 5 score and the track defeated Delaware on Nixon Field 57 to 43. Both of the events were close in the ninth when he drove out a home run with one on base. Bostock was the star of the track meet. He made a 100 yard dash in 9 4-5, the 220 dash in 23 2-5, and jumping 6 feet, 2 inches.

The High School base ball team defeated Westminster High School on the Kurtz Playground 5 to 3.

ENGAGEMENT

College Professor will Marry Miss Winebrner of York.

Mr, and Mrs. H. A. Winebrkey, of York announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edna Margaret Winebrkey, to Franklin W. Hoke, of Gettysburg. The date of the wedding has not been made public.

Miss Winebrkey has been a frequent visitor here and has many friends in Gettysburg. Mr. Hoke is assistant professor in English at Gettysburg College, from which institution he was graduated in 1907. He is a son of Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Hoke, of Carlisle.

FOR DEMONSTRATION

Local Orders Plan Parade and Speaking at Bonneauville.

The patriotic orders of town are taking steps to hold a demonstration in the Independence Day parade that of last year, with the exception that this year's event will terminate with speaking at Bonneauville. The day falls on Sunday but will be observed either Saturday or Monday. An invitation will be extended to surrounding bands to participate as they did last year.

HEAVY LOSSES

Stats and Individuals Suffer from Recent Fires.

Both fire services in fighting forest fires this spring have been taxed and the Forestry Department will be called upon to pay hundreds of dollars. Prior to the late rains, the fall and will run high in the thousands. The State is a heavy loser by the fires, especially on reserves in the Cumberland Valley which were hard hit.

FOR NEW ROAD

Wanin Harrisburg Business Directed in York City.

Congressman Lafean is making an effort to have a state highway constructed between York and Dillsburg, so as to divert the business of upper York county to York. For many years Harrisburg has been getting the bulk of the business in upper York county.

JUDGE M'CLEAN'S WILL PROBATED

Asks that those who Receive Money as Results of Bequeste shall Give One-Tenth of it to God. Asks Modest Burial.

The will of Hon. William McClean has been probated. After several special bequeste giving his law library, his theological library and other books, the rest of the estate is given in trust for the use and support of his daughter, Olivia C. McClean and, upon the termination of the trust, to the children of his first marriage, his son by his second marriage not participating by reason of what he has already received.

Then follows the expression of one of the observed rules of his life "I trust that of all God shall give the recipients under this my will, they will surely give the tenth unto Him."

He declares himself opposed to unnecessary expense at his funeral and that his coffin be an inexpensive one so that his body can return to its mother earth undelayed. Let no mourning be worn and let the sun shine into the house and into the hearts and lives of his children with God's love and peace."

He names as the executors of his will his daughter Olivia C., and his son, Wm. Arch McClean.

The will of the late Adam Bubb, of Hamilton township, has also been probated in the office of the Surrogate Recorder Gardner. After making a special bequest of a bureau to his son, Andrew Bubb, the rest of all his property to his wife, during her lifetime, and at her death directs that the personal property be disposed of and the proceeds divided equally among his four children. Two sons, Andrew Bubb and Lewis Bubb, are named as the executors. The will was made August 15, 1914.

KILL TWO BILLS

Measures Defeated in the House by Decisive Votes.

Many Adams County people are directly interested in the defeat of two bills in the House Monday.

One of these would increase the tax on automobiles, motor trucks and other like vehicles and it is estimated would add to the revenue of the State at least $150,000 a year should it become a law. There was vigorous opposition to the bill from the State Federation of Automobile clubs, individual auto owners and others, who organized a campaign against the proposed additional taxes. After two hours' debate the bill fell by a vote of 50 ayes to 120 noes.

The other administration revenue bill defeated was that presented by Representative Hess, of Lancaster. It would impose a tax tax upon the transfer of $100 stock of domestic and foreign corporations, co-partnerships and stock associations. It has been stated that the Governor counted upon raising about $500,000 a year from the enactment of this legislation. On this bill the vote was 59 for it and 70 against it, 104 votes being necessary for final passage.

TO HOSPITALS

Three Local People Taken to Various Institutions.

GULFLIGHT'S FATE AS TOLD BY MATE

Bones Tells Stirring Story of "War Zone."

HOW CAPTAIN GUNTER DIED

Second Officer Asserts he Intervened After Rescue That He Now Submits—Has Two Mites Away and Twenty-five Wounded on the Steamer Which Ship Was Struck by a Torpedo.

The brief account of the sinking of the steamer Gulflight by a torpedo in the "war zone," with the death of the captain, wireless operator and a sailor, given by Paul W. Boness, her second officer, on his being landed at Pensacola, Fla., from one of the most thrilling and pathetic stories of the sea.

The Gulflight was on the way from Port Arthur, Tex., to Ponce, Prueto Rico, with a cargo of oil consigned to the Compania Industriels des Fosfatos of Ponce.

"When the Gulflight left Port Arthur," said Boness, "we were convoyed by a warship of some description, which kept out of sight, but in touch, by wireless and warned us not to display any lights at night.

"At noon Saturday, May 1, we were twenty-five miles west of Key West. The weather was hazy, but not thick.

He Was an Welsh.

"About two and one-half miles ahead I saw a submarine. I was on watch and noticed that she came from the starboard side, who also saw the submarine. It remained on the surface for three minutes and then disappeared.

"Twenty minutes later, without the slightest warning, we were struck by a torpedo on the starboard side. There was a tremendous shock. The submarine was then out of sight and discharged the torpedo.

"I reported that we had been met by two patrol boats, which accompanied us on our way to Key West. Our starboard side was so badly shaken by the explosion that we feared the ship would break in two. Water poured in through the fore hatch and inflicted. He was muttering all the time about the ship's company that he wished some one to take care of his wife.

"The crew had always regarded Captain Gunter as a healthy man, but of late had ever heard him complain."

Second Assistant Engineer Cates added to the safety. He said:

"I was on watch in the engine room when we were torpedoed, and so terrific was the blow that the Gulflight seemed to be tumbling to pieces. She began to settle to the lifted high in the air and then to descend rapidly. I said to myself, 'Now I'll be gone,' but I kept on and stuck the engines down.

Describing the Attack.

"Describing the deck, I found there intervening between me and the deck. I got into them, with the exception of the third assistant engineer, Charles C. Hunt of Chicago, and a steward named Chapman, of Port Arthur, Tex., who when I left the engine room were dressing and said were drowned.

"The officer who thus tragically met death, the first American ship's officer to be a victim of the war zone," was Captain Alfred Gunter, whose home was at 1132 West Fifth street, Eugene, N. J. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Gertrude Gunter, and a little daughter. Short, the wireless operator, was making his first trip.

The Gulflight was owned by the Gulf Refining Company, a Texas corporation having offices in Pittsburgh. She was built at Camden, N. J., and was 365 feet long, 48 feet beam and 24 feet deep. Her tonnage was 6,000.

DOG HURT, SEEKS SURGEON.

Terrier With Broken Leg Limps into Hospital Patients' Room.

A fox terrier limped into the room in the front entrance of the City hospital at St. Louis and sought out a patient with his left front leg in the air and clearly needed surgical attention, he thought.

Nurses and physicians examined the leg and found it was broken. They carefully bound it in splints. Then the visitor, after effusive displays of gratitude, curled up contentedly on a rug and went to sleep.

Evening Dress For Chicago Aldermen.

Chicago aldermen have appealed to the city clerk for permission to wear evening clothes at night sessions and frock coats with silk hats for afternoon functions.

TOURIST TRADE ON THE INCREASE

Philadelphia Teachers, Knights Templar, Knights of Columbus and Others, Plan Trips here within the next Month.

Busy weeks during the latter part of May and the beginning of June are forecasted for the Gettysburg people who cater to the tourist traffic. A number of trips have been booked, railroad and hotel accommodations for the coming weeks and the number of visitors to the battlefield are growing.

The latest party to arrange for a visit here will be composed of no less than 150 school teachers from Philadelphia. They have made reservations at the Eagle and Hotel Gettysburg and will be here for three days, May 31, 1 and 2. The teachers are coming under the direction of the Pennsylvania Railroad which is making all preliminary arrangements.

Saturday afternoon, May 22, the Columbia Club, of Philadelphia, will come to Gettysburg to remain until Monday morning, when they will depart. May 23, a party of Knights Templar from Pittsburgh will arrive here to spend the day on the battlefield. Both parties will be quartered at the Eagle Hotel.

A delegation of the Knights of Columbus 500 strong have booked accommodations here for June 12 and 13, and they will spend the time in touring the field. They will come in private trains and special arrangements will be made for their entertainment while here. The Ninth Pennsylvania Cavalry Association will hold a reunion here on June 16th.

The Reading Railroad and the Central Railroad of New Jersey will also run excursions to Gettysburg on Sunday, May 30th. The former will come from Philadelphia and the latter will start at Newark.

Excursions from Elkins, West Virginia, and Cumberland, Maryland, have been added to the list of those booked by the Western Maryland for Memorial Day, May 31st.

Two colored excursions from Baltimore have been booked by the Western Maryland for the first week in June. On the seventh the Lebanon Beneficial Association will bring 1,000 colored people and on the eighth the following Monday the St. Barnabas Catholic church will bring from 600 to 800, according to the estimate furnished by the Passenger Department of the railroad.

ATTIRE FOR THE SUMMER GIRL

centers area, brier "O" perforation at under-arm seams. If made high neck, sew standing collar to neck edge as follows: Fold collar lengthwise through center, fold edges of collar to center, backer even and bring large "O" perforation to large "O" perforation in front. If desired, gather front and back on crescent-shaped "O" perforations and stitch upper edge of band over yoke, turning raw edge under to band; under-arm seam. Finish lower edge of band with a straight hemstitch ruffle about 1 inch wide. Turn under edge of sleeve at "O" perforation and gather between these and notches and finish. If desired with sleeve puff, sleeve seams are joined to "O" perforation. Gather on crescents of each "O" perforation and draw pattern to the required size and stitch tape underneath. Adjust position underneath, bolted edge of sleeve meeting and seams even.

Now close the seams, finish the neck with a band, turning raw edge in, lower edge of yoke, also back seams of bands, to be adjusted on the skirt, having the center-front and center-back seams even. Stitch upper edges above cross-lines of each waist "O" perforation. If de-

Summer frock of silver organdy pollen blue with bands trimmed with tatting to match the dots.

For the girl who is fond of brown and white, this model will be lovely. A brown dotted swiss organdy over a white foundation would be made into this exquisite summer frocks. The accompanying hat is made of white milan with braid, bows and short sleeves in brown. The dress is trimmed with bands of brown taffeta. The coverage size for the 16 year size requires 7 3/4 yard taffeta and 7 yard batting 1 inch as wide for easy.

In putting the design together first tack the waist, and the tucks may be put in by machine or with tracing or chalk stitching. Both these forms of hand trimming are exceedingly popular this season. Then join the shoulder and sleeve seams and hem the back on both sides. Gather lower edge of waist and sleeves and join to yoke, gathering perforations to fit into the lines of the fabric. Finish the lower edge of waist, sleeves and yoke with a narrow hem.

EXTRACTED BULLET'S OWNERSHIP A PUZZLE.

Gorman Juricts Dispute Right of Soldier to Memento of Wound.

The question of the ownership of an extracted bullet is being debated with considerable vehemence in Germany. As a rule, a patient wants to retain the bullet as a curiosity. On the other hand, the surgeon claims it as his fee.

A Jutter in Berlin has decided that a wounded soldier has a right to keep all the bullets that lodged in his body because, when it reached him, it was hostile property and not his own property. The enemy relinquished the ownership in sending the bullet.

This question of the ownership does not give the surgeon who extracts the bullet any right to it, even if the wounded or dead soldier was entirely unconscious and unable to assert his claim. Where a surgeon extracts a bullet extracted by him the soldier has a good case for demanding possession of the coast hold.

The surgeon asserts that the enemy does not lose its ownership after the bullet has left the body, and therefore he got victorious has a right to all the ammunition that was left behind him, which can be recovered from the wounded or dead. Therefore every individual who may right to lay claim to an extracted bullet.

The debate is being carried on with the greatest earnestness by members of medical and legal authorities, who are even going to the Reichstag in order to bring international law on the subject.

WIFE MUST PAY ALIMONY.

Los Angeles Court Extends Woman's Duty as a Citizen.

The duty of a woman as a citizen and wife has been extended by Judge Robert Summerfield to include the duty to pay alimony.

In the divorce suit of Mrs. Mary F. Krause, sixty years old, H. H. Krause, twenty-one years her senior, refused to make the beds, sweeps out the house, washed the dishes and cooked other work in his wife's rooming house, valued at $40 a week.

"If you stay at home," said the judge, "I will make you pay alimony or else you are to notify me."

The court ordered Mrs. Krause either to support her husband during the pendency of the suit or to pay him alimony of $40 a month.

SURGEON LOSES RIGHT HAND.

Saves Life by Telling Chauffeur to Bind Arm After Crash.

Dr. Lewis M. Dragoo, a prominent Coudersport, Pa., surgeon, lost his right hand, which was severed by the propeller blades of an automobile at the Mott Run Flats, when he was thrown from his automobile and that of Justice Wilson J. Carr.

He was hurled through the glass in the front of his limousine but in the fall escaped the jagged glass, nearly severing the hand at the wrist. He saved his life by summoning to his chauffeur the cry: "Get out alone and get busy and twist it tight. It will keep me from bleeding to death."

He was taken to the Methodist hospital, where a colleague amputated the hand.

BARKING FISH FIGHTS MEN.

Mayor of Joliet Says He Watched Fierce Battle Under Water.

Joliet, Ill., has just won the fish story championship.

Harvey D. Wood, the mayor, declares he saw a fish with a beak that is a blind and a bark like a dog's. He says the Kankakee river halfway into a bank in which were a number of holes. The fish bit and barked furiously and pursued the two men until they swam desperately to shore. Mayor Wood asserts the horns could be heard half a mile.

RENDERS ARMY INVISIBLE.

Chemist Discovers Chemical Which Destroys All Movements.

A chemist at St. John's, N. F., claims after years of experimenting to have perfected a chemical which obscures any object from view now which it is released, and the invisibility may be maintained for an indefinite period.

Hundreds of persons of all classes have witnessed demonstrations. The most startling result of the discovery is that an entire naval and military force can be thrown into a fog which renders it invisible to the naked eye.

DECORATE GRAVES SUNDAY EVENING

Catholic Memorial Service is Moved to Later Hour in Order to Accommodate Veterans. Procession to and from Cemetery.

Services for the veterans of the Civil War who are buried in the Catholic Cemetery will be held on Sunday evening, May 30, when the usual procession of the Catholic societies and organizations of the church, together with the veterans will be held and the graves will be decorated.

In response to the expressed desire of members of Corporal Skelly Post, the custom of holding these exercises in the afternoon which was followed last May will not be observed this year, but the evening will be used instead, the old soldiers finding it more convenient at that time. Singing hymns, the procession will move from the church to the cemetery after 6:30 in the evening and will wend its way through Carlisle and West streets to the cemetery where flowers will be strewn on the graves of departed comrades.

Rev. W. F. Boyle will conduct brief services at the entrance to the cemetery and the march back to the church will be taken up. The veterans and all others interested will be invited to attend the service to follow in the church when Rev. Fr. Boyle will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

This custom established several years ago by Rev. Fr. Dougherty has come to be an important feature of Gettysburg's Memorial Day observance and is one that is much enjoyed by the veterans and much enjoyed by others who participate.

WOMAN ARRESTED

York Physician.

Is Alleged to Have Robbed Office of Drugs.

Charged with the larceny of $50 morphine tablets, valued at $100, and about $40 in cash, Miss Linda Peters, of the New Century club, left Saturday and taken to the York jail. The arrest is alleged to have been made from the office of Dr. C. H. Venus, in York, last Wednesday, when Miss Peters is thought to have entered the premises by a rear window during the absence of Dr. Venus and Mrs. Venus.

Harry Lockenbill, also of New Oxford, is said to have been implicated. Lockenbill, it is said, met Miss Peters, and despite her denial, acted as her counsel during the hearing, in the office of the police, since a man fitting in a blue suit and light fedora hat, answering his description, was seen loitering about the neighborhood, on Wednesday afternoon.

ELUSIVE STEVENS

Detective, Constable, and Citizens are all Evaded.

Harry Stevens, of Heidlersburg, after long escaping from pursuing constables, is still at large, wanted on a charge of purchasing a horse which he had not been authorized. Stevens was first sought at his home by Constable Bream, of Biglerville, and John Fenwalk, a Reading Railway detective. They found the place locked, with Stevens on the inside. While Fenwalk went for a search warrant, Stevens left by a rear door and got away in a buggy. The officers then telephoned and secured the aid of Constable Sharry, J. Harvey Neely, R. H. Gibb, and C. A. Hamilton, of York Springs, who gave chase in an automobile.

Just as they were about to overtake Stevens, he jumped from the team and into a field. Gibb followed, caught the horse and brought him back, allowing him to get into the team he had hurriedly occupied. He then claimed that they had no right to pursue him without a warrant, and when his captors were diverted by passing automobiles, suddenly started the horse, and when he was again about to be caught took to the woods, making good his escape.

Made It Unanimous.

"Have you any political enthusiasm in Crimson Gulch?" "Nary," replied Broncho Bob. "When the school teacher dropped a hint as to how she'd like to vote we'd have been glad of a chance to shoot up anybody that 'ud interfere with her, but by common consent we turned the polls over to her all to ourselves and she's there wouldn't be any chance of her bein' embarrassed."—Washington Star.

FISHERMEN MET

Committee Named to Present By-Laws for Association.

A number of Gettysburg's enthusiastic fishermen met at the City Hotel Wednesday evening and took preliminary steps toward the organization of a protective association. James W. Nicholls was chosen temporary president, and the following committee was appointed to draft resolutions and by-laws, C. K. Gilbert, W. B. Fleming, Dr. E. H. Markley, and C. W. Musselman. The meeting is open to all town and county sportsmen.

LOCAL CANNERS TO OBSERVE LAW

New Code Governing Establishments Meets with Approval, Proprietors Saying General Regulation will Improve Business.

That the canning plants in Adams County, which operate extensively every year for many months during the apple season, will comply with the new code is the statement of the various managers. C. B. Musselman, of Biglerville, president of the Pennsylvania Canners Association is much pleased with the new legislation. He says:

"While it is not as complete as we would like it to be, yet we appreciate what we have developed for we are all very enthusiastic about sanitary regulations for the welfare of our canning industry. There is nothing so important in our midst, in order to stimulate the consumption of canned goods, as clean canning factories. This in our opinion goes further than advertising in a general way.

"If there were some way that every canning factory in the United States would be brought under sanitary regulations and strictly enforced, it would have a most desirable effect, in our judgment, and we hope that this can be developed in some way in the near future, as several canning factories not having the proper sanitary features, will bring reproach on the whole canning industry.

The new code gives extensive instructions as to the proper location of factories so that the sanitary conduct of the establishment may be properly carried out. The interior arrangement of the factories is given equal attention as well as the conduct of the plant. Every detail is covered and the removal of all litter, waste and up products is provided for.

The protection of the employes from injury by any of the machines, the safeguarding against injury or loss of life by fire, the employment of persons physically fit for the work and not suffering from a communicable disease, and the provision of rest rooms are all taken care of by the numerous sections of the code, while smoking and chewing with other unsanitary practices are strictly forbidden.

The promptness of local canners to comply with the provisions of the new law speaks well for the industry as conducted here and which has become such a prominent factor in the development of Adams County as a fruit growing section.

FUNERAL

Eight Grandsons Served as the Pall Bearers.

Many relatives and friends attended the funeral of Mrs. John H. Culp held here Wednesday afternoon. Eight grandsons acted as pall bearers. The floral tributes from relatives and friends were numerous and beautiful, while the flowers were also sent by church and patriotic organizations. Among the people from out of town here for the funeral were Mrs. S. F. Trostle, forter, Hampstead; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoyen and sons, Carl and Oscar, Mrs. Charles Seifert and Mrs. George Schuler, Reading; Prof. T. D. Culp, Union, Florida; A. D. Frankforter, Hagerstown; Mrs. Sophia Tipton, Bendersville; Adam Snyder and family, Fairfield; Mrs. Kathryn Firor, Thurmont; Mrs. Lewis Ramer, Hanover; Mrs. John Snyder and children, Fairfield; Miss Lottie Culp, Baltimore; Earle Culp, York.

WINS $500 PRIZE

Was Contest over Hundred Thousand other Entrants.

To William P. Quimby, now of Philadelphia, but for many years a resident of Gettysburg, has fallen the good fortune of winning "Life's" $500.00 prize for the best title to an unnamed picture. No less than 122,299 persons entered the contest, and much cleverness was shown in many answers. Mr. Quimby's suggestion for the picture was:

Hbe: Are you going to volunteer?
He: If you, too; if so, yes.

In addition to the grand prize there was a second of $200, a third of $100, and seven of $10 each. It is said that a number of local people participated but none of the other awards came this way.

GAME CANCELLED

On account of the probability of Nixon Field being too wet to allow play, Manager Crider on Wednesday evening telegraphed the Trenton team not to come for the game scheduled for Thursday afternoon.

Miss Ella Appler, of High street, is the guest of friends in Hanover.

GET SUBSTITUTES FOR EARLY GAMES

Cannot Use College Men so Long as School is in Session. Must Get Other Players for Opening Games of the Blue Ridge League.

That none of the college players signed for the Gettysburg team in the Blue Ridge League, will be allowed to play with the town aggregation until after June 7 was reported at a meeting of the board of directors Monday evening. As a result Ira Plank will have to secure more than half of his team for the opening games from outside, and they will play only until the college boys are released by the institution.

The reason for the action of the college athletic authorities is said to be to avoid the charge of professionalism, as it is feared other schools might object to playing against men who have at one time been in the line participating in organized base ball. Franklin and Marshall don't come up by with her basket ball men who did this last winter and Gettysburg wishes to avoid any unfavorable developments.

As a result it will be necessary for Manager Plank to secure a catcher, short stop, third baseman, and left fielder for the opening game here on May 27 and for all the other games on the two days following. Practice will not be allowed to pitch either, but it is believed that Pitcher Adolph will be able to hold down the greater part of the games in the Pennsylvania. Mr. Plank expects to have everything in readiness several days before the season opens and will have players from a distance all all report for training in ample time.

A committee has been appointed Tuesday evening to confer with the college authorities relative to the use of Nixon Field before the close of school. It has been understood that there would be no trouble getting the field during the summer, but there seems to be some question about securing it before commencement. Failing in this, Gettysburg may have to go back to use the Kurtz Playground diamond, or arrange its opening games on foreign fields.

Efforts to prevent the watching of the games from Lincoln avenue will be made. Bids will be asked for refreshment and other privileges during the summer months.

CON'S DISCHARGE DISFIGURES BOY

Part of Lid's Face Torn away by Load of Shot. Was out Hunting Crows with Companions when Accident Occurred.

William Shearer, 17 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shearer, of Latrobe, Westmoreland county, on the farm of Samuel Farree, not far from Abbottstown, had the left side of his face blown off by the premature injured when a double-barrel shotgun accidentally discharged Friday morning. The young man's condition is regarded as critical and but slight hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Young Shearer, with four companions, including his brother, Paul, Spencer Farree, Norman Boeckel and Harry Hamm, went to the fields surrounding the Farree farm to shoot crows which have been seen in that vicinity in great numbers the past several weeks. In a short while the sounds of the birds were detected in a nearby tree.

Shearer, it is said, in order to get a crouching position for a good shot, placed the butt of his gun which he reached for it the gun fell and discharged. The entire contents of the weapon tore the larger portion of the face, tearing his left ear entirely off, and blowing the left eye was shot out. The entire left side of the young man's face and neck received the full effect of the charge.

A companion immediately ran to a nearby home and summoned a physician, who reached the place a short time later and rendered what aid he could. The young man was in an unconscious condition and remained in that condition when Dr. Wagner was later removed to the York hospital.

BUY ONE

New Plan is Raise Funds for Town Team.

Carnations—500 of them—will be sold in Gettysburg Saturday for the benefit of the Gettysburg entry in the Blue Ridge League. Florist Cremer, of Hanover, has kindly consented to furnish the supply at a greatly reduced rate and the directors of the club will place the flowers in the hands of a number of young girls who will dispose of them. The minimum contribution in return for a carnation will be ten cents, though there is no limit to the amount that may be paid, if the generosity of the donor prompts a larger gift.

IN STRANGE HOUSE

Was Cooking Supper when Borough Police Arrived.

Taking possession of the home of Abraham Rife, near town, a strange man was discovered in the act of cooking a supper of ham and eggs Thursday afternoon when Officers Emmons and Smiley arrived. The intruder had frightened Mrs. Rife so thoroughly that she ran to a neighbor's home and telephoned for help. He was placed in jail where he gave Nashville, Tennessee, as his home.

CHAIR FOR TEACHER

Miss Helen Cope Remembered by Pupils.

The Senior class of the Gettysburg High School on Thursday evening visited the home of Miss Helen Cope, Baltimore street, and presented her with a chair for use in her school room. The boys and girls took with them an ample supply of refreshments for the outing and the popular teacher was surprised successfully.

CHOOSE TEACHERS

New Oxford Schools Provided for at Meeting.

The following teachers were elected for the New Oxford schools for next year: Fred Smith, principal; Miss Lottie Hubbs, Miss Annie Schaeffer, Miss Ida Feiser, intermediate; and Miss Mary Kennedy, Primary.

The school term was voted to cover a period of eight months

Wanted to Find Out.

The young man in the bureau of information here had the railroad guide down and looked reproachfully at the woman who had turned in a volley of questions. "Madam," he said, "you don't possibly take a train anywhere you are asking about." "I knew it," she replied, serenely, "but as long as I didn't have anything else to do I thought I'd just see for myself how much you railroad men really know about your business."

The First Disciple.

The name Andrew, a brother of Peter, was the first disciple chosen by Christ. Both Peter and Andrew were fishermen and left their boats to follow Christ. The Feast of Andrew after the death of Christ is uncertain, but the common opinion is that he was crucified. He is the patron saint of Scotland, and Russia has a Knighthood order of St. Andrew, the highest order in each of that empire.

Jail to Our Country's Pride.

A citizen on the South side recently bought a moderate priced motor car, and a few mornings ago he called on his next door neighbor and offered to take him downtown to the office. That night the neighbor's little girl said to the proud car owner: "I know what kind of an auto you've got." "Is that so?" the man asked. "What kind?" "Papa says at dinner what it is. It's a Tin Lizzie!"—Kansas City Star.

WHAT IS JAPAN IN CHINA, NEW MEANING TO DO WORLD'S PROBLEM

Aga Kid Ambition of Islanders to Rule All Asia May Now Be Behind Sudden Move For Coersion.

Despite Denials, the Japanese Demands Are Thought to Endanger Principle of Equality

WHAT does Japan intend to do with China? Everywhere this question is being asked today—even in the war trench as in Europe.

In the midst of one vast upheaval, conflict, in fact, practically all the European nations are fighting for their lives, suddenly has sprung up possibilities that may mean almost as much for the future of the world. At the moment none can tell whether or to what they seriously may lead.

America is interested in this problem even more than is the war in Europe. Does Japan, either by arms or by the greatest diplomatic stroke accomplished in this age, purpose to conquer China or so bring her under Japanese influence and control that she is virtually conquered? Whatever the intention, the interests of the United States run by vitally interwoven.

Japan has declared in the most solemn manner that the months of silence and inaction which have led to her statement that she is not going to close the "open door" in China and is not going to meddle with, let alone destroy the territorial integrity of the Chinese empire.

Kato Gives Assurance.

Baron Kato, Japanese minister of foreign affairs, said so in his historic speech in the diet Dec'y last. Count

TYPE OF CHINESE SOLDIER.

Okuma, the premier, said the same thing. Kato declared:

"As premier of Japan," he said, "I have stated out of my own mind to the people of America and of the world that Japan has no territorial motive, no desire, to secure more territory, no thought or purpose in China or other people of anything which they now possess. I have stated and my people have given their word and their pledge, which is to me as binding as Japan always keeps promises."

Similar statements to this effect have been given to Washington and London.

By its preamble the Anglo-Japanese treaty of July 13, 1911, declares one of the objects of the alliance between Great Britain and Japan to be "the preservation of the common interests of all the powers in China by insuring the independence and the integrity of the Chinese empire and the principle of equal opportunities for the commerce and industry of all nations in China."

In the Root-Takahira agreement Japan makes these same pledges to the United States.

But there are now some who fear that the day of Japan toward China do not altogether tally either with the spoken explanations of her statesmen or her treaty pledges. It is felt that she is taking advantage of the fact that great, helpless, peace loving China has at last come to become all the powers in Europe are too tied up in defending themselves to think of defending her.

Japan Uses Diplomacy.

Since after the Japanese had captured Kiaochau from the Germans Tokyo announced that a secret pact had been forgotten at Peking "to threaten the future security of Japanese relations with China and to decide certain questions concerning the future development of the Chinese republic." Japan entitled the forced surrender, but mentioned only eleven of her twenty-one demands.

It had been understood from the last wording of the Japanese ultimatum to Germany that Japan would restore Kiaochau to China. It was then understood that the Japanese negotiations with Peking were merely preliminary to the restoration to China of that section of Shantung province which had been held by the Germans.

But China protested that the demands made by Japan were infringements upon her sovereignty and conflicted with treaties existing between her and other powers. When eventually China accepted practically none of the terms of the Japanese demands published in full it was seen that the situation in Shanghai with the utmost gravity depended upon the precise attention that Japan assigned to pressure brought to bear on Japan in temporary chancery on account of our temporary infirmity in arms. But a small thing like a weak navy carries a sting in its tail, and is therefore nothing to be despised. To rule a people of alien race is not to easily done, as said

"She must first destroy our national ownership and the national spirit itself and down to us these thousands of years and then impress on those remaining to herself. But is this possible? Force of arms may be used to subdue for a short period, but there is no need to worry. Any nation that would try to destroy us would witness its own destruction after a few years."

Japan has in her army a war strength of 1,500,000 men. But only a fraction of 1% available, all trained and armed the best and most modern fighting men the world has ever seen. Her war organization is at least equal to that of Germany. Some think it even superior. Her navy is rated as the last of the world's most powerful navies.

Vast Nation Has No Remedy.

Against this Japanese power China has her strength is estimated at 400,000 men. But only a fraction of this army is armed or well trained, and as compared with Japan she might almost be said to be no army, just as she is powerless really to say. But available and eventual war strength of China is not to be measured by those in the field, if forced to it and given time, by the vast resources of the country.

In her navy Japan has nine new battleships, built since the war with Russia, and eight cruisers. Against these battleship cruisers and thirty other craft China has but two warships in active service. China has but seven second class cruisers, and these are old. In addition, Japan has five gunboats, sixty torpedo boats, twenty-three destroyers and fifteen submarines. Against these China has two gunboats and ten torpedo boats. Japan has an active naval force of 100,000 men, and China 14,000 men in the reserve. China's naval list is an unknown quantity and in any case could take no part in war with Japan.

Count Okuma in his message to the American people on April 3 said:

"When the negotiations are discussed it will be found that Japan has exhausted strictly to the principle of equal opportunity."

But the Japanese premier was not referring to the relative strengths of China and Japan in the way of trained fighting men.

For centuries Japan's ambition has been to be the religious supreme in the far east. "Asia for the Asiatics" is the slogan of the most ardent Japanese secret societies.

The Japanese fleet, as old as the time of the Empress Jingo, who scarcy 2,000 years ago planned to establish the supremacy of Japan. Her brilliant victories over Russia in 1904-5 were but the Japanese schoolboy. Though the Japanese army and navy are certainly her hold on the peninsula, the policy was never changed. Only the method of enemy it was renewed with great vigor. Korea is now a veritable colony of Japan, sent a vast army to Korea.

Although Japan has declared she will buy no armament, but now it is an obligation with her to arm to protect her people, Japan does not regard her policy in China as in any sense an aggression. It is the result of her natural development and she feels herself entitled to the security of her dominions from hostile influences.

China of Old Is Gone.

But the China of today is hardly the China of the Japanese victories of 1894-1905. Within less time a score of years China has made more real progress of progress without an equal in the history of the world. The government record of the past fifty years includes nothing which will compare in results of years of observance have been accomplished.

The revenues have increased beyond all the most optimistic estimates. Several high officials have been convicted of graft and sent to prison, including the governor of the world in 1914, ordered by the president of the republic. Due to the European war and without foreign aid, China paid all her obligations for foreign loans and indemnities and besides, raised a domestic loan of $20,000,000, a result which would have been an impossibility in any other period of Chinese history.

It may be that, as friends of the Japanese claim, Japan merely wishes to do for China as she has done for the people of Henry W. Denison, their Manchurian banker, has returned from a visit of several days on a motor trip Indiana.

TO MAKE FIRST CLASS SCHOOL

Littlestown Board of Education will Add Second Assistant in High School and Enlarge Building. Make Other Plans

With the intention of qualifying their high school for first class rating, the school board of Littlestown has decided to add a second assistant to their faculty, and an election for that purpose will be held on June second. At their meeting held on Mon., D. B. Keener, the principal, advocated the election of a college graduate for the new position. The election of an additional teacher to the High School corps would mean the dismissal of one of such studies to the curriculum as to bring it within the State requirements.

The School Board previously passed a motion to make an addition of another school room to the building, building the plans of which were prepared by the architect, Edward Bair, and are now in the hands of the Board awaiting action.

Superintendent Krouse was instructed to order a supply of diplomas and certificates of graduation. The class engraved on seven of them which number will be awarded diplomas in the Commencement exercises.

Commencement exercises will be held in May 30 in the Lutheran church, in which each member of the Public School class will have a part. Superintendent McGinnes, of the Steelton Public Schools, will make an address and a musical program will furnish the music.

Dr. Hill will be invited to deliver the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class on the Sunday evening preceding the Commencement exercises. Rev. Mr. Hill is pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church and will place the baccalaureate services will be held.

HEAR TESTIMONY

Former Indian School Superintendent is Indicted.

Dr. Moses Friedman, former superintendent of the Carlisle Indian School, and S. J. Nori, former chief clerk, were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury at Sunbury on Friday, charges of misappropriating funds embezzled at Carlisle were made by the chief and for making illegal use of money furnished for traveling expenses of the officers.

Friedman and Nori resigned from the school office at Carlisle after charges against its affairs had been started by the government.

Two Indian maidens were brought in from the West to testify against them. Miss Anna Moore, a Sioux Chippewa girl, told the grand jury of alleged irregularities at the school, saying that she gave Friedman and Nori money to keep for her that never was returned to her. Miss Lucy Indian maiden, who was a student at Carlisle, made similar statements.

Nori appeared as a witness against Friedman at the trial. It is understood that he has turned State's evidence and has declared that any money that he received from Indians was duly accounted had passed from his hands, but that he could produce receipts for it.

The pair were indicted last January by the grand jury investigating charges ure to make satisfactory accounting of Government funds to the Indian Association of the school. This case has been continued to the October term.

DEDICATION

Dr. Billheimer Will Preach at St. Paul's Exercises.

Dr. T. C. Billheimer has been engaged by the Rev. S. L. Hench to deliver the dedicatory address at the Lutheran congregation during the exercises attending the dedication of the new St. Paul's church, Pleasant Hill, erected at a cost of approximately $25,000. The church is now in the place of Sunday, May 16. There will be exercises in the morning at 9:30 o'clock, afternoon at two o'clock, and there may be a service in the evening. Dr. Hench, the congregation's pastor, has secured the services of Dr. Billheimer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, Emmanuel Reformed church, Hanover, who will speak at the afternoon session. Rev. Dr. Billheimer will deliver his sermon at the morning service.

Miss Grace Spahr, of Hanover street, is the guest of friends in Biglerville for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald P. McPherson have returned home after spending several days on a motor trip Indiana.

ANOTHER PASTOR FAVORS SURFRIDGE

Rev. Mr. Taylor Urges Local Organization to Strive to Prepare Adams County for Favorable Action on the Measure.

At the meeting of the Woman Suffrage Study Club in the Court House on Saturday the principal address was made by Rev. F. E. Taylor, pastor of the Presbyterian church, who said in part:

We are in the midst of a transformation. It is significance reminds us of the renaissance of learning and the Reformation.

Great changes like that which is now going on have usually been brought about by sacrifice and suffering, and this is going on peaceably. At the start Woman Suffrage was relied upon indolently or with superior air. Two years ago it was spoken of in the Legislature as a joke. In the few months it has become in this State a tremendous force and is receiving the sincere consideration it deserves.

The changed conditions of life for women have not only brought this subject to the front, but have made it a necessity, a matter of life and being. Under the old system of manufacturing, with women busy in the home, given no direct voice, shones came in of necessity. Political conditions and economic conditions have not been burdensome to women toilers. The question of wages as a factor having no voice in the laws governing the conduct of that industry have been manifestly unjust. Social and moral conditions unhealthy and unwholesome have unjustly fallen on the law that paid men for the same work, long hours, night work, and exposure to disease, with no compensation for men. Under our faulty political system conditions have grown that have threatened the health, the morals, the very existence of the home. Against these women, unprotected and unvoiced, have had no adequate voice of protest.

Not one leading woman active in advocacy of suffrage but would be a woman suffrage. This speaks for those who know the conditions surrounding women workers. It is because they do know the conditions we would all work for the franchise. Ballots are the only means of correcting present harmful conditions.

The fundamental or irresistible because it is right. Let our people see this and nothing will defeat it. Women are women, but they are citizens. Women are to be a tribute at the feet of our mothers. To them we owe more than what it has given freely to us. What it has given freely to us. What it has given freely to us. What

RUN TWO MILES WITH INVALID

Tramps and Drag Father and Son, Then Bash Away with Mother and Three Children. Town Took Freight at Playing Girls.

After knocking down and trampling Elmer Asper, and dragging for thirty five or forty rods, his 17 year old son, a team belonging to the father ran for two miles Sunday afternoon taking with it Mr. Asper's invalid wife and three little children. They were caught by the elder father. One ace was done, and after being turned around, again ran away but were subdued before any more was hurt.

The Asper family, residents of Latimore township, were attending church from York Springs. When they stopped at the toll gate near that town a young mule which was hitched with a horse to the curriage, took fright, at some little children running through the nearby fields. Mr. Asper jumped from the vehicle and ran to the mule's head. The animal reared, knocked him down and then jumped forward, dragging the helpless man with him.

Henry Asper, the son, leaped from the wagon to quiet the animals, and was thrown, being dragged by the lines for more than a distance over the rough pike. The daughter, Ruth, a girl fourteen years of age, jumped out with the little baby and escaped injury. The mule's hoofs badly mutilated the face and his clothing was torn at many places. The son was rendered unconscious and remained in that condition for some minutes, but his injuries were found to be not serious.

Meanwhile the horse and mule dashed madly on, pulling along the carriage which held the mother and three side to side. Mrs. Asper has been so much of an invalid for several years, that she has scarcely been able to walk without assistance, and she was helplessly in the rear seat, with three little children, fearing every moment that the carriage would either overturn or that the earriage animals would run into some obstacle.

After running for two miles in this fashion, the team was finally stopped by John Hoover and Jacob Shiffler's blacksmith shop, Mr. Paxton and Ray Hoover jumped in, turned the animals about and started back to ascertain how badly Mr. Asper and his son had been hurt. They had gone but a short distance when the animals again started out at a break neck speed and it was quite a time before they were quieted. Mrs. Asper and the children were then taken out of the vehicle, another team secured and the father and son were found and taken home.

Made It Unanimous.

"Have you any militant suffragettes in Crimson Gulch?" "Hary," replied Brown Bob. "When the school teacher dropped a hint as to how she'd like to vote we'd have been glad of a chance to shoot up anybody that 'ud interfere with her. But by unanimous consent we turned the polls over to her an' she stayed away an' there wouldn't be any chance of her bein' molested."—Washington Star.

The Job Uncle Ben Did

By SADIE OLCOTT

"Uncle," asked a little white child of a septuagenarian negro in Alabama, "were you in the war between the states?"

"Yes, honey, I war in de wah. Leastaway, I war dere."

"Did you kill anybody, uncle?"

"No, I didn't kill nobody, but I saved somebody's life."

"How was that? Tell me about it."

"Well, honey, when de wah broke out all de niggers was ordered to de front.

"Why do you say 'de wah broke out,' uncle?"

"Was de insurrections now sho's what day was don. Now day all sot up, an' dey was, by de 'fo answer, I reckon. Den dey wah big and lots o' niggers on dey side. An' I was one o' dem. Now, all de niggers workin' on de ole plantation dug out way 'cut me. My honey, a great-grandpa, with mighty kind to me, and I wasn't a dead head. I did jobs about de house. I wah a carpenter, an' I made some furniture dat well needed on de premises.

"Yo' great-grandpa went off to de wah, and yo' grandpa went off to de wah. He 'lowed he'd be among de last to take his freedom. He ole plantation didn't look like it would do no after de Yanks came. Dey good my de fence an fo yo'ward and back yo' and all sides.

"Yo' grandpa wah awlus so many years ahead o' his time dat yo' great-grandpa when he went to do well by his family, he'd be war gone to 'f marry with his mother, an' I was born.

"Yanks war here yo' grandpa Mose Marse Edward's mother's people, 'fo' to visit Missy Lucy. He wah three days on de road, an' when he got dere he had no business, bein' as yo'ther in de wah. He 'lowed he'd be among de Yanks. While he wah visitin' his mother's people he met up wid de plain native heads cum in and sold dat somebody's life." "Why was that, uncle?" Dey wah cumin' some time in de night, honey, to kill him.

"Marse Edward wah satisfied like a woman in de house. He 'lowed he'd set, for de Yanks had cum dat day and he'd stay dere 'fo' de night, an' dat's where he wah. Yo' grandma sent fo' me to come an' wait on him.

"Den, Marse Edward come here to de house, an' he 'lowed he'd go plum day long him fo' a spy. Can't you understand dat, honey? Can't you see dey won't answer?"

The child shook her head and done a bit o' thinkin'. Den I said, 'I don't know what I'll do.' Den I 'lowed I'd get a double bottom to de wood box, who he wah a-war in."

"Yo' berry I'ine," said mis-sy, and I 'lowed he'd get in dere. Den I 'lowed I'd walk in de kitchen and wah a great big fire. I 'lowed I'd put de double bottom high 'nough fo' a man to lay down in, and I 'lowed I'd put a pan o' 'taters for breakfin'. I hadn't nev'a got it done when Miss Lucy come in de kitchen an' massa'e de house. Marse Edward got up, an' he 'lowed, 'Mose, you'd better run yo' ar do.' Missy tol' me to go to yo' do', and I went.

"Who dah?' I axed.

"'Open yo' do' dis minit,' said a man a-pound de do', and without askin' any more I opened de do' an' he 'lowed, 'Nigger, lookin' fo' yo' grandpa, Marse Edward war here yesterday, an' he 'lowed he'd get in her, lookin' into de closets and under de beds and to de cubbord to de dining room. What I want to know is, whar he wah dat, and I had de lef' hand cocked on de do', an' de right hand by de side, he rest ain my eyes was on de wood box an' de double bottom, an' I 'lowed to myself, 'Mose, you'd better run yo' ar do.'

"'Nigger, is you deaf?' he 'lowed, 'I don't yo'?

"'Deahan,' I says, wih a wish in de ar' hand corner oh my right eye.

"'Nigger, is you gwine to tell me whah?'

"I put my mouf down close to his ear, and I says, 'Whah?'

"'Look in de smokehouse.'

"With dat he 'lowed off he mos from de house, and I reckon he went out to de smokehouse, for I seed him no mo' mo' from him.

"I 'lowed I'd wait and time sway we-uns had a con'ultation how Marse Edward gwine to get out o' dat fix, an' I say no done it war to rub he face wih cold water, and kinder, I say she takin' hair wih her curlin' tongs, and he put on his collah and tie, and he 'lowed through de 'Yankee as he war a-gwine to take dinner wih de Yanks, an' day he rode into de Yankee lines under a white flag wih some south'n product on it.

"Why, yo' grapse war a fine Southern man!"

"I don't know, honey, tell me."

"He scuffle wot wah hunkin' for his de day befo'. Marse Edward had some skin through a crack and hurned wihin right off. Marse Edward lerfed and pole him 'bout it, all, but said he wasn't a spy; he only cum in see his ma and Missy Lucy.

"No, honey, I didn't kill nobody dat de wah, but I did a might' good job gittin' yo' grandpa's life. If I didn't de day yo' wouldn't been hyer nohow."

TRAVELING SALESMEN TO VOTE ON SUFFRAGE.

New York Man Aid Women and Association Will Be Polled.

In their work for suffrage New York women have the interest and to a large extent the aid of the New York Association of Commercial Travelers of America, according to Miss Rose Young, president of the organization. This, Mr. Rey-Mond Young, husband of the latter, is traveling men are working for their own right to vote and are therefore available to sympathize with the demands of the women.

"We are trying to have special provisions made for the traveling men who may vote though absent from home on the day of election," said the president of the Union each president has been asked to write to the members asking to get the straw right for the men of New York.

Because of the analogy in their problems the traveling men's association will come up at the next meeting of the organization, which will be conducted by America's lively discussion resolved that the right to vote should be granted. Each of the 3,500 members is to receive a copy of the debate and the position in regard to women suffrage will be determined by the vote of each. It is set at the semimonthly meeting to be held.

"I feel confident," said Mr. Reynolds, "that the traveling men will be found to stand on indorsing women suffrage."

The city of the association is the home of the Associated Commercial Travelers, which has a membership of more than about 3,000 women commercial travelers. Miss Young, however, declares that she is not to be admitted to membership in the association, but is merely the organization.

"In reality," she says, women are better than men in our field," Mr. Reynolds declares. "They are more thorough in their work and have come to stay in the profession. We have had a number of our minds to that. In the same way if the men have the right to vote they can no doubt have a part in our national life, and I think they are bound to do it."

HUERTA, HARLEM LANDLORD

Dictator Puts Mexican Bonds into New York Flat Houses.

By putting Mexican and Mexican bonds into six Harlem apartment houses, Victoriano Huerta, dictator of New York landlord, it is said.

The six apartments are on the corner at 117 to 143 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, and One Hundred and Forty-second street and Lenox avenue. They are valued at $1,000,000 in fact, which was sold two years ago to one Pinkney estate.

Title to the property was transferred to Huerta by Charles Mason, of Williamsburg, Pa., but when payment was made it was found that the bonds presented John De Kay, a close friend of Huerta. SAMUEL M. KNOX ON THE LUSITANIA

Well-Known Adams County Man in the Silver List of those who Escaped Death When Big Liner Went to Bottom of the Sea.

On board the big Cunard liner, Lusitania, when she was torpedoed by a German submarine off the coast of Ireland Friday was Samuel M. Knox, brother of J. Charles Knox, of Center Square, and of Mrs. Kate M. Horner, of Hanover. Mr. Knox was rescued, and Mr. Knox was fortunate enough to escape. The story of his experience is told in the following cablegram to the Philadelphia Public Ledger:

"Queenstown, May 8.—As we were finishing luncheon in a calm sea, a heavy concussion was felt on the starboard side, throwing the vessel to port. She immediately swung back and proceeded to take on a list to starboard, which rapidly increased.

"The passengers rapidly, but in good order, left the dining saloon, proceeding mostly to the A or boat deck. There were preparations being made to launch the boats. Order among the passengers was well maintained. There was no panic. All approaching a panic Many of the passengers were in their staterooms and provided themselves with life belts.

"The greater number of passengers were concentrated on the high side of the ship, and when it became apparent that she was going to sink I made my way to the lower or port side, where I assisted in the launching of boats only partly filled and no passengers in them. Then the lifeboat I found the outside of the boat deck practically even with the water and the ship was even further down by the head.

I stepped into a boat and a sailor in charge then attempted to cast her off, but the ropes at the bow and stern falls had fouled the boat and she could not be released in the limited time available. The sailor cut the painter and attempted to get clear of the ship, which was now sinking fast. I was caught by one of the smokestacks and carried down a considerable distance before I regained my senses.

"On coming to the surface I floated about for a considerable time, after which I was picked up by a life raft. This raft, with others, had been thrown overboard by the sailors, and had been picked up and taken charge of by Mr. Leslie Morse, Mr. Lauriat, of Boston, who picked up 22 persons in all.

"It was equipped with oars, and we made our way to a fishing smack, which took us aboard. There were 60 on board, although it was already overcrowded. We were then taken off this boat by the Canard tender Flying Fish and brought to Queenstown, arriving at 6.

Mr. Knox was born in Adams county and has always spent his summers at Knoxlyn. Last year the estate, which consists of a number of weeks, enjoying country life and renewing old acquaintances. The news of the sinking of the ship was the largest sea disaster will be most happily received by his many friends.

Mr. Knox has been one of Adams County's most successful "boys". He was graduated from the Law building Company which constructed the United States Capitol building. "Ohio home," the launching of which in Pittsburg was attended by a number of persons from Shippensburg and the county, who were Mr. Knox's guests on that occasion.

On Saturday, May first, he left his home in Washington for Philadelphia, to go to London on business. He went with A. L. Hopkins, president of the Newport News Shipbuilding Company, and it was their intention to remain in England for a month.

It was always Mr. Knox's custom, in making trips to England, to use the Lusitania, because of its comfort, and he enjoyed greatly the complete rest he was in doubt of its seaworthiness and furnishing. With the 1200 others on board the ship he was rescued, his life saved, and he will be able to return to the published advertisements and personal letters of inquiry received by the family. He carried in sailing into the war zone at this time.

In telling of Mr. Knox's trip to England The Philadelphia Press Saturday evening said:

"It was on account of business that the head of the New York Shipbuilding Company, Mr. Knox, engaged passage on the Lusitania.

"His wife and daughter remained at their home, which is at 310 West Walnut street, Pallas.

"Mrs. Knox learned of the sinking of the Lusitania after having attended a performance at the Stevens School, in which her daughter, Miss Jean Knox, participated. When told of the calamity she collapsed and had to be cared for by a physician.

"Miss Violet Henry, the artist, who is a friend of the family, learned of the sinking of the Lusitania while the play was in progress, and after debating whether she should inform Mrs. Knox at once, decided not to leave her with her enjoyment of the drama by breaking the news, and according ly waited until the curtain fell.

"A MOTHER'S SON"

Given Christian Burial after Half a Century.

A most unusual and touching funeral was held from the Soldiers' National Cemetery on Friday afternoon when the remains of the unknown soldier, found at the foot of East Cemetery Hill on the battlefield, were given Christian burial. A small company of G. A. R. veterans gathered about the little grave, among a few women, and Rev. J. B. Baker conducted the service. A portion of Scripture and a prayer was offered and the minister then made a few minute address which left a deep impression on the company present. A brief prayer closed the service and the minister and his wife and children marched down the lane to the cemetery gate.

Cause of Ocean Tides.

The chief cause of ocean tides is the attraction of the moon which, affecting most strongly the side of the earth nearest to the moon, draws or heaps up the waters in the parts of the earth successively turned toward the moon. The attraction of the earth for the water on its antipodes is strong enough to counteract the attraction of the moon and hold the water in place, but it responds to the attraction of the moon by considerable movement the point from which the moon is directly overhead.

AUSTRIA'S U-5 DESIGNED IN U. S.

Submarine That Sank French Cruiser American Made.

ENGINES WERE BUILT HERE

Secret Vessel Which Covered Trip of Nearly 300 Miles to Reach Pola and Get Back Safely Proves Value of Undersea Craft For Coast Defense, Says Her Designer.

The Austrian submarine U5 which made a trip of nearly 300 miles from her base and sank the French cruiser Leon Gambetta in the Gulf of the Adriatic sea, with a loss of 502 lives, including Admiral Senes, was designed in America and equipped with machinery made in this country.

The vessel and her sister ship, the U6, are of the new double-propeller speed, radius, etc., as the five United States submarines. One of the features which now constitute the floating defense of the Panama canal. These vessels, of course, smaller and less powerful than the submarines which have been built in newcomers and in natural wonders their great value for defensive purposes.

Made Long Sea Trip.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the torpedoing of the Leon Gambetta took place approximately 500 miles away from the base of the U5, that distance being the cruising value of the mobility possessed by these submarines. It is also noteworthy that the Austrian government in 1910. The U5 was launched in 1911, and therefore her power built during the year of 1912 and 1913. Her sister submarine, the U6, is now in the Austrian navy on plans that are being kept secret.

"In view of the secret respect paid to the value of submarines by the five great powers in the European war," said Simon Lake, designer of the U5, to an interview, "our coast fortifications at the mouth of the Panama canal, cannot supply complete defense. The submarine, however, can be made to fill the breach and to relieve us from the necessity of building the many forts which would otherwise be necessary to protect the canal."

Cities Cordonless as Losses.

"The experiences of the allies at the Dardanelles form also an impressive object lesson in the value of submarines of the form and the landing of French and English troops. It would be quite possible did the Turkish navy possess one or more submarines that if these operations are finally successful and if the city of Constantinople ever to be the turning point of the war the "vital importance to the world" that has been the clearest possible proof."

The U5 and her sister submarine U6 were saved. Of these 130 landed at Syracuse on the twenty first day of their. The bodies of admiral Senes and fifty-two officers and men have been recovered from the sea and given decent burial. The Austrian torpedo boat destroyers. Residents of Syracuse contributed $1,000 to defray the expenses of the funeral.

DISCUSSES WAR SITUATION HERE

Hamilton Holt Addresses Interested and Enthusiastic Audience in Bruce Chapel. Urges Immediate Calling of Conference.

That President Wilson should immediately call a conference of all the nations of the world now at peace—before Germany can answer the American note—was the suggestion advanced in Bruce Chapel Friday morning by Hamilton Holt, editor of the New York "Independent" in the strongest discussion of the international question heard in Gettysburg since the present great war began.

"Let this conference discuss any matter which might properly come before it," said Mr. Holt. "Let them take up any of the many matters that need discussion. The program need not be too clearly outlined, but let the call be issued at once, so that, in the event of Germany refusing the American demands no one can accuse us of calling the other nations together 'to pull our chestnuts out of the fire.'

"In the event of Germany refusing our demands there is an element in the United States whose anger will at once be at white heat and who will demand an immediate declaration of war. Let our differences then be placed before this conference already in session. If we must go to war, let it be in the face of cool judgment and not in heat. If this conference of nations rules with us than we could all bring economic pressure to bear against Germany. If they do not stand with us, we can still act independently.

"There is no doubt that the situation between the United States and Germany is now very serious. If Germany refuses the American demands one of three things will happen. Either the people of the United States will 'let it slide,' which is scarcely likely; or the people will put economic pressure upon Germany; or something will be done that would result in the declaration of war.

"Suppose this country should declare war on Germany, what would happen? We could do no harm for six months. England does not need the help of our navy and it would take from six to nine months to raise an army sufficiently large to do any harm. If we start to raise an army we would at once stop the exportation of munitions and arms to the belligerents, keeping them at home for our own use. Perhaps this would suit Germany exactly.

"We have already lost 100 men in the Lusitania incident. Shall we send 100,000 more after them? Of course, the question of national honor arises and must be taken into consideration."

Mr. Holt made a powerful argument for international peace and advocated the formation of a Peace League, which he long has suggested and earnestly supported.

This Country Must Lead.

"It is to be the United States to lead in this matter," he said. "This country is the world in miniature. Here we have a demonstration that people from all nations may live together in peace. Every president of the United States, from the first great Thomas Washington, to the latest great Virginian Wilson, including Jefferson the Virginian who declared war the world's greatest scourge, has been an advocate of peace through justice.

"After the war," Mr. Holt said, "democracy must be advanced, and we must politically organize the world. We would save the trouble completing arbitration between the United States and Germany and Japan if the Senate had voted the treaties both outside of its membership. I blame President Roosevelt more than anyone else for its failure. Mr. Taft hitched his wagon to a star, but some one cut the star out. Mr. Bryan didn't aim so high but he got there.

"Let the great nations of the world combine to enforce peace. Let them combine the strength of their armaments to compel the others to obtain free war. As other nations join this Peace League the combined armament may be just that much decreased, just as that is just that much more that of other nations on the outside. Finally the people within the nations, not members of the League, will demand disarmament and we will need only enough for the proper 'policing of the world—a peaceable community."

Vividly picturing the horrors of the present war and he ultimate effect on the progress of the world he said that there were three great arguments against war—the moral, economical, and biological.

"The old doctrine of 'Thou shalt not kill' still holds", Mr. Holt said. "The ruinous destruction of wealth is shown by the fact that from $60,000,000 to $80,000,000 has been spent in the past twenty four hours in its prosecution. There are now 14,000,000 men in arms and for what are they fighting? Do they know, do you know, does anybody know?

"If this war goes on much longer there will be 1,000,000 men killed or maimed for life. The whole civilization will fall. Those of the fields that will remain unplanted for a whole generation, think of the factories silent for years, think of the halt in progress along the lines of science, literature, and art."

A War Against Women

"They say that the men are the ones who suffer. I say that all wars are waged primarily against women and children. Even now there are 250,000 widows in Europe with seven hundred thousand more fatherless children. Equally we will have 250,000 girls who will either have to remain single or marry cripples. Then for it is a well recognized fact that the flower of the male population is the first to be affected. This is shown in Virginia where the best Virginians were the first to enlist in the Civil War, they fought valiantly and the most of them fell. Those who survived the war were in the majority the conscripts, the more inferior men, and may not the fact that their posterity are now in power explain the fact that Virginia does not hold her former proud position of influence in the statehood of nations?

"War cannot be stopped by the making of the beginning of war any more terrible. The present conflict has demonstrated that. This war has shown that men are not afraid to die, that they are not afraid to put themselves sacrifices. Courage we have, in common with the brutes, and the theory of arming to prevent war will be a fallacy until men become cowards."

Japan and this Country.

Touching on the attitude of Japan toward the United States Mr. Holt had stated that he had paid a visit to Japan to learn the feeling there. In answer to many questions Mr. Holt said that his opinion was that there would never be war between the United States and Japan unless the United States started it.

The Holt war enthusiastically received by an audience which was composed of the student bodies of College and Seminary, and a number of people from town.

WED IN BALTIMORE

Excursionists Planned a Surprise for Their Friends.

Slipping quietly away from their friends without taking advantage of excursion to Baltimore, on Thursday, Miss Bess Hollick, of Hanover, and Oscar Bechtel, of near Littlestown, were married upon their arrival in that city.

All arrangements for the ceremony had been completed before parties left.

"The bride was attired in white" when the couple left Hanover but other than that there was nothing to indicate to any of their friends that they were on a wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Bechtel will reside with their newly furnished apartment in Hanover. The bridegroom has been employed by his father-in-law in their stone quarry near Littlestown.

ANOTHER HOPE

May Reconsider Local Option in State Legislature.

Further consideration of local option in the state legislature, which now considered probable, notwithstanding Thursday's drubbing William's local option bill was defeated earlier in the session by an overwhelming majority.

A resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of seven to investigate the advisability of passing such a bill has been prepared, although the Republican leaders have not agreed to have it introduced.

HIGH SCHOOL WON

Interesting Nine Innings on Karbe Playground Thursday.

Before an enthusiastic crowd on Karbe playground Thursday afternoon High School team again triumphed over the Seminary nine, defeating them this time by the score of 9 to 7. Both teams had to battle hard to win and were close enough from start to finish to give the spectators plenty of excitement.

Early Thursday Morning.

I call it improper pride to be ashamed to confess that you have been in the wrong, that you must have it decided that your plan is right, and that you are not foolish.—Henry W. Elliot.

MRS. FRANCIS X. LITTLE

Died in Hospital after Undergoing an Operation.

Mrs. Emma Little, wife of Francis X. Little, of McSherrystown, died at the West Side Sanitarium, York, Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock after an operation which she underwent for internal troubles on Tuesday. She was aged 58 years, 1 month and 28 days.

She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Stonesifer of McSherrystown, residing in McSherrystown all her life. Besides her husband she is survived by two children, John Little and Mrs. Grover McKinney, of McSherrystown, also five grandchildren.

The funeral will be held on Saturday from St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock, Rev. L. Aug. Reuther officiating. Interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

MRS. JACOB HAVERSTOCK

Mrs. Emiline Haverstock, wife of Jacob Haverstock, died at her home in Biglerville at 8:15 a. m. Wednesday very suddenly. The cause of death was dropsy and gangrene. She was aged 66 years, 9 months and 28 days.

Mrs. Haverstock had not been well for some time but she was able to be about and on Tuesday walked in the yard and was heard by her family apparently as usual. It was not until midnight that she became seriously ill and her death was very unexpected.

She leaves her husband, two daughters and four sons. Charles Haverstock, Arendtsville; George Haverstock, of California; Mrs. Hannah Staley and Mrs. Emory Fant, Biglerville; Emery Haverstock, California; Luther Haverstock, Eichelburg; Perry County. She also leaves three grandchildren and one brother, Hiram Sherry, of Ohio.

Funeral Saturday morning, May 15, at services at the house at 9:30. Services at the home. The body will then be taken to the Lutheran cemetery for interment, Rev. D. T. Koser officiating.

Friends and relatives will kindly accept this as notice of the funeral.

MRS. ELIZABETH BAKER

Mrs. Elizabeth J. Baker died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. E. A. Hankey, on Baltimore street, Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock after a long illness.

She leaves the following children: B. F. Baker, Greenmount; Mrs. D. E. A. Hankey, Gettysburg; Harry Baker, Bridgeport, Md.; Mrs. Jacob Crist, of near Emmitsburg; Lewis Baker, of Philadelphia; Dr. Dory Baker, Hanover, Gettysburg; Cornelius Baker, of Iowa; also the following brothers, Jeremiah Fisher, of Biglerville; John Fisher, of Fountaindale; William Fisher, of Thurmont; and Daniel Fisher.

Brief services were held at the home of D. E. A. Hankey, Friday morning at 9:00 o'clock after which the body was taken to Emmitsburg where services were held in the Lutheran church. Interment in Emmitsburg cemetery.

Friends will please accept this as an invitation to the services.

MISS SUSAN S. DEATRICK

Died after an illness of fourteen weeks. Miss Susan S. Deatrick, daughter of Michael and Mary Schriver Deatrick, of Mt. Joy township, died on Friday afternoon at the home of her nephew, Harvey M. Deatrick, near Plum Run.

She was seventy two years old in January and is survived by one brother, Mr. Singleton J. Myers, of Biglerville, and by one brother, Samuel Myers, of Mt. Joy township.

She was an active member of the Reformed Church and attended all public services when health permitted. By her quiet and unassuming manner she endeared herself to those friends who attest to her true worth and faithfulness.

The funeral was held from her late home at the residence of S. J. Myers, Biglerville, on Monday Friday morning, with interment at Bender's Church.

MAURICE J. MUNDORFF

Died at the home of his father, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mundorff, of Mt. Pleasant township, near White Hall and Gardners, Wednesday, May 5, 1915, of tuberculosis aged 13 years and 8 months.

Besides his parents he leaves the following brothers and sisters. William Mundorff, of Zenia, O.; Charles Mundorff, of Riverington, N. J.; Calvin Mundorff, of Gettysburg; Gladys Mundorff at home.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning with short services at the house at 9 o'clock and further services and interment at Christ Church, near Littlestown. Rev. F. B. Lindaman, officiating.

FIRST MATINEE

Big Attendance at Track Near Bantztown for Racing.

The first of the summer series of racing matinees at the track of the Great Conewago Association, near Bantztown, was held Thursday in the presence of a large and interested crowd who spent a most enjoyable afternoon. The success of the event has caused the officials to plan for the same kind. The track is just 500 feet short of a half mile and owing to the fact that it was somewhat heavy the time was slower than usual. The summary:

CLASS A

Wilson, R. L. Smith 2 2
Time—2.02 and 2.11½.

CLASS B

Dirt Hale, Fred McCammon 2 2
Bertha W., Dr. Gardner 1 1
Madison Square, Dr. Sanks 3 3
Time—2.14; 2.16.

CLASS C

Flying Jim, J. M. Reinecker 5 5
Dewey, John Bender 1 2
Daisy, Carl Griffin 2 4
Mike, Fesser Mummert 3 3
Black Joe, S. Zeiser 4 1
Time—2.22; 2.17.

The judges were: Rose Hostetter, Hanover; A. V. Welker, Gettysburg; J. J. Miller, New Oxford; H. B. Gilbert, Bantztown, and H. S. Thomas, York.

During the day the Hunterstown base ball team defeated York Springs 8 to 6.
